Council Orders Widening of Central Avenue

PETITIONS ON BOULEVARD PLAN WIN APPROVAL

Central From Lexington
To San Fernando Road
To Be Improved

Central avenue is destined to become one of the finest boulevards in Southern California, a credit to the city of Glendale, and a lasting monument to the citizens who conceived the idea, as the result of the unanimous action taken by the City Council last night.

After considering the matter for over a month, hearing all those who were opposed to the plan, as well as those in favor of it, the council denied all protests against the widening of this thoroughfare to a width of 100 feet and instructed the city attorney to start the necessary proceedings, amid the applause of the adherents of the project which interrupted the council session for five minutes.

Greater Improvement
The proceedings as originally started included Central avenue from the junction of West Broadway south to San Fernando road, but the progressive spirit is apparently contagious, and last night a petition was presented asking that the widening be extended north as far as Lexington avenue.

Approximately 98 per cent of the property holders on Central avenue between Broadway and Lexington signed this petition, so it will undoubtedly be an addition to the original proceedings, allowing the work to be done at the same time. The hearing on the North Central petition was set for 10 a. m. on December 27. The atmosphere was seemingly electrified with the intense interest displayed when Mayor Spencer Robinson called the council to order and it immediately proceeded to discussion of the Central avenue matter. City Clerk A. J. Van Wie was asked to read the report of City Engineer Ben S. Dupuy, who had been engaged all afternoon in checking the petition and protest presented at the morning session. In order, as the two sides claimed, to show the sentiment of the people residing on Central avenue.

Submits Report
The report was rather a lengthy one and also dealt with the protest filed with the thirty-day limit, which was the only legal protest.

BEATS NURSE TO DEATH WITH IRON

Alleged Wealthy Maniac Is Held For Observation
In Brutal Crime

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—What is declared to be one of the most brutal murders in the history of this city was committed early today, according to police, when Karl W. Eaton, 27, an alleged maniac, member of a wealthy family in the Angeleno Heights section, beat his male nurse, Orin W. Schmitz, to death with a flat iron. Eaton will be charged with manslaughter, the police said, pending an observation of his mental condition. He is held at the psychopathic ward at the general hospital. Schmitz is said to have been employed a few days ago as nurse for Eaton, who, it was discovered, was becoming insane. Schmitz was sleeping in Eaton's room when he was attacked and beaten to death before he could defend himself. Eaton's deep study of religion is declared to have affected his mind. He is also said to have threatened his physician.

First Real Cold
Of Winter Grips
West, Mid-West

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—From New Mexico, where two hundred motor tourists were marooned behind snow drifts, to the Great Lakes, where storm warnings brought severe temperatures but no reported damage, the west and mid-west today bundled itself in against the first nip of real winter.

Rescue parties working from San Marcial, N. M., brought in nearly 100 motorists from the snow-bound roads, while the remaining two-thirds of the group held prisoners by winter for two days resumed their battle through the drifts.

Fargo, N. D., saw the thermometer drop to twelve above today, while Winnipeg had it ten above after a light snow and drop to four below yesterday.

San Francisco boasted sixty degrees and coming eastward from the Rockies, the plains states reported milder temperatures. Minneapolis had twenty and Chicago twenty-five early today. In some sections the winter weather has proved a blessing.

Glendale Gets Its Share of Moisture; Citrus Crop
Not Hit By Cold

A big majority of Glendaleans were not aware that a sprinkling of rain that fell over the city at a late hour last night added .01 of an inch to the season's record to date, making the total .63 of an inch.

One year ago the record stood at 5.41 inches, all of which accounts for the prevalent declaration, "It's a long dry spell we're having."

Falls on Southland
Rain fell over various parts of Southern California, including Los Angeles, today. The rain was eagerly welcomed by ranchers whose vegetation was suffering from lack of water.

Only a trace of rainfall was registered in Los Angeles and vicinity early today. At San Fernando 1.4 of an inch was registered and .10 of an inch fell at Santa Barbara.

The clouds prevented frost and the citrus crops were not endangered in any section of Southern California.

"Partly cloudy, unsettled weather, tonight and Saturday," was the official forecast.

November's Business

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Business of the United States showed a slight slowing up in November, as compared to October, but a healthy improvement over November, 1922, according to a statement describing basic industrial and commercial movements, issued today by the department of commerce.

Employment in 1428 factories totaled 2,015,642 workers in November, compared to 2,025,847 in October and 1,862,433 a year ago, the report said.

$35,000 Depot HereRAILROAD TO

STRUCTURE

Building at Glendale and Lexington to Provide Better Service

Announcement that Glendale is to have another new depot in the very near future, to be erected at a cost of $35,000, was made yesterday afternoon by James H. Payne, chief draughtsman of the Union Pacific system, with offices in room 543, Pacific Electric building, Los Angeles.

The proposed location is the southwest corner of the junction of Glendale and Lexington avenues. A petition asking that this property be changed in classification under the city zoning ordinance from residential to commercial was filed with City Clerk A. J. Van Wie at 3 o'clock yesterday, and it will be granted by the City Council, it is predicted.

Work Starts at Once
Application had been made earlier in the day for a permit for the construction of the building at the office of Superintendent H. C. Vandewater, but the application was turned down, owing to the classification of the property. The action expected to be taken by the council will remove the last obstacle in the way.

"We expect to begin the erection of the new depot at once," stated Mr. Payne, this morning. "It will involve an expenditure of $35,000, of stucco construction, and will be a credit to this part of the city, and an addition to the commercial life of Glendale of which all might be proud. It will be of the latest design, and the waiting rooms will have all modern conveniences. It will be one-story in height, 40x160, and will house the ticket office and private office of the resident agent."

Improved Service
The new depot will be of great convenience to the patrons of the Union Pacific railroad and Glendale & Montrose railway. When the schedule has been arranged, passengers on the latter railway will be carried over the lines of the Union Pacific to Verdugo road south of the city and be transferred direct to cars of the Los Angeles street railway system from Eagle Rock.

The new depot will be ready for occupancy in from sixty to ninety days, according to Mr. Payne. When this service is fully established, it will provide a direct route to and from Los Angeles for residents of that section of the city.

Henry Ford Will

Predicts Leader

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Prediction that Henry Ford would declare himself for President Coolidge for the presidency in 1924 was made at the White House today by Burt D. Cady, Republican state chairman of Michigan.

Cady made his prediction after seeing the president but said he did not speak either for Ford or for Coolidge, but voiced his own belief.

President Coolidge's campaign to succeed himself in the White House in 1924 definitely got under way today.

Official announcement was made that national headquarters of the Coolidge campaign will be located in Chicago on December 27, under the management of William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, one of his closest personal friends and chief adviser, and assistant William B. Good, ex-congressman.

GIVE PERMISSION FOR P. E. TUNNEL

Railway Will Have Until March 1, 1925, to Build
Los Angeles Bore

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—The State Railroad Commission today granted the Pacific Electric railway permission to construct and operate a tunnel, in the city of Los Angeles, from its Hill street tunnel to Glendale boulevard.

The Pacific Electric railway is ordered to commence construction of the tunnel within sixty days from December 23 and to complete the same by March 1, 1925, unless granted an extension of time. The company is also directed to file monthly reports during construction.

Construction of the proposed tunnel from Hill street station at an estimated cost of $3,000,000 for construction of tunnel and terminal facilities and rights of way is ordered by the commission after an exhaustive investigation as to the advisability of locating the terminal under Pershing square rather than at the Hill street station.

The new depot will be ready for occupancy in from sixty to ninety days, according to Mr. Payne. When this service is fully established, it will provide a direct route to and from Los Angeles for residents of that section of the city.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The British foreign office today took a more optimistic view of the reparations situation as the result of two important developments:

First, France's decision to open direct negotiations with Berlin upon certain questions.

Second, the decision of the United States to participate in the investigation of Germany's capacity for reparations payments.

AUDITORIUM
DEDICATED

Students Stage Variety Show
In New Building With Big Crowd Present

Only a few of the 2046 seats in the new Glendale Union High school auditorium on East Broadway were unoccupied last night, when the presentation of the tenth annual variety show by the student body was made the occasion for dedication of the monumental building.

H. W. Yarik, president of the Board of Trustees, made the presentation address, telling how time and money make marvelous changes, and recalling to the audience that only a few months ago the site of the now nearly complete $600,000 high school plant was a dense grove of orange trees.

He was introduced by George U. Moyle, for twenty years principal of the Glendale Union High school, who has seen it grow from a student body of 100 to its present enrollment of approximately 2000. Mr. Moyle stood there on the great stage and peered ahead into the immense auditorium, a sea of people, seized with a strong emotion. It was all a dream—a dream come true! His few simple words of greeting were along that line. They were followed by tremendous applause.

Tribute to Moyle
W. E. Hewitt, president of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, another speaker, congratulated the city on having such a superior auditorium as a part in the new high school system and paid a tribute to Mr. Moyle, whose vision, he said, had carried the thing from a dream born years ago to the reality of today.

George Lindsey, one of the architects of the new plant, talked briefly stating that this auditorium was the best in any high school west of Chicago and one of which Glendale and the whole Southwest can well be proud.

A. L. Ferguson, vice-principal of the Glendale Union High school, introduced Normal Hay football team, who, in turn, introduced each member of the team.

DEADLOCK IN HOUSE STILL WORKING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The insurgent Republicans of the house again demonstrated their veto power today by blocking ratification of house committee assignments. Representative Longworth, the Republican leader, was forced to adjourn the house until tomorrow because of uncertainty as to his forces in the face of bolting Republicans and dissatisfied Democrats.

Rain Proves Big Aid to Northern California Crops

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—High winds raging along the Washington and Oregon coasts caused the weather bureau to hoist storm signals as far south as Point Reyes. Reports to the weather bureau said the wind attained a velocity of 80 miles an hour at North Head, Wash. Yesterday and last night rain fell from Alaska to Central California, Northern California receiving its first general precipitation of the season. The rain will be of immense value to the agricultural interests, it was reported. Fair weather followed the rain in Northern California, with unsettled weather in Southern California and rain or snow in the north Pacific states.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.

TOURISTS FIGHT

Marooned Travelers Buck
Drifts In N. M. Canyon;
Many Reject Aid

SAN MARCIAL, N. M., Dec. 14.—At dawn this morning, more than 200 automobile tourists, who had spent the night rolled in blankets around camp fires and in the tonneaus of their cars, began a vigorous attack against the huge snow banks which have held them prisoners for two days.

Yesterday, rescue parties brought to San Marcial between eighty and ninety marooned tourists, but the remaining 200 declared they would stick it out and fight their way through five more canyons and into Hot Springs, N. M., where they can resume their trip to the Pacific coast.

Nogal canyon is just ahead of them, and local relief parties have warned that they will find conditions in this locality more severe than those which surrounded the party during the last forty-eight hours. Aid offered by the townspeople was refused by the stalled party, who declared their supplies were sufficient to see them through.

Send Cars By Rail
Hotels, vacant store rooms and the opera house were thrown open to those returning yesterday, and this morning fifteen automobiles were being shipped by railroad, the people continuing their trip by train.

Beyond frozen feet, hands or ears, there have been no reports of injuries. One car and abandoned led authorities to fear that perhaps its occupants may have become lost and possibly frozen to death.

The storm has abated and highways are gradually being opened for traffic.

PLENTY OF EVIDENCE TO SHOW GROWTH OF CITY
SETS REMARKABLE RECORD

Exact Figure Is Given by Glendale Evening
News After Most Careful Computations Obtained from Four Different Sources

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Of The Evening News Staff

Glendale has passed the 50,000 mark in population, once more piling up the greatest growth record in the United States.

The Glendale Evening News, in announcing this fact, makes known the result of careful investigations it has been conducting for some time, to establish the exact population of the city.

This figure it can now give, following a series of accurate computations, obtained independently through four different avenues of estimate and then averaged.

The figure is 50,168, population of Glendale at noon, Friday, December 14, 1923.

Such a Christmas present no other city in Southern California or in the world can boast. It exceeds even the reputation earned in 1920, when by government census report it was shown that Glendale increased its population 393 per cent in the decade then ending, a reputation which has enabled the city to take for its own slogan "the fastest growing city in America."

Glendale in Front Rank
Now, more proudly than ever, may Glendale wear this slogan—for in a mere three years the city has grown as much as in the entire preceding remarkable decade that won for Glendale the admiration of the world. Long Beach, Alhambra, Pasadena, Burbank, Fresno and other claimants to the title of the "fastest growing" city are hereby served notice that their claims can no longer be seriously considered, in the face of this new evidence. Here is the story:

Population today, over 50,000; 1920, 22,000; 1921, 23,000; 1922, 13,350; 1910, 2742.

And in building permits, consider this: Total for 1923, to date, $9,573,188; for 1922, $6,305,971; for 1921, $5,099,201; and for 1920, $3,137,269.

Here Is Evidence
The estimate that at noon today Glendale had a population of 50,168 is arrived at by averaging the following four separate estimates:

Based on school enrollment and attendance, 54,473.
Based on ratio of building permits to population for past three years, 51,200.

Figure compiled from population ratio of gas, water and electric installations of past three years, 45,000.

The total of the above four sets of figures is 200,673. Averaging this by dividing it by four, the result is 50,168, estimated population of Glendale at noon today.

Methods of Computing
Taking each of these four separate estimates one at a time, and showing how it was obtained: The 54,473 of school enrollment comes from taking the average daily school attendance, 6342, and multiplying it by 10, the customary ratio. This gives 63,420; which is averaged in turn by six and one-half times the total enrollment of 7004, or 48,526. These two major figures are in turn averaged, making the figure 54,473, which was used above.

The figure of 50,000 given out from the Glendale post office this morning by Captain D. Ripley Jackson is based on the number of carriers required to deliver the mail, and by other methods of computation employed generally throughout the government postal service.

The figure of 51,200 based on averaging the ratios of building permits to population, for the past three years, can be obtained by anyone who will average the percentage of gain in population each year with the percentage of gain in building permits, from which it is possible to estimate the percentage of gain in either for the year now drawing to a close, and from this to arrive at the above figure.

Most Conservative
The figure of 45,000 used above, based on general averages of gas, water and electrical installations, is the most conservative figure employed in this calculation, as anyone who is familiar with the situation knows that public service connections are not able to keep pace with the rapid growth of this city and that any figures based upon them are at least 10 per cent short of the mark.

PRAISE OBREGON CAMPAIGN PLANS

Military Attaches Predict Defeat of Rebels By Federal Troops

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—Several military attaches assigned to various foreign legations here returned today from Celaya and Irapuato where they have been observing the mobilization of federal forces under command of President Alvaro Obregon.

The attaches told International News Service that they found the morale of the Mexican troops much better than they had expected. They praised President Obregon for his organization ability.

According to military attaches, there are about 8,000 or 10,000 fully equipped soldiers, supported by enough artillery, shrapnel and other ammunition to carry on an extensive campaign.

The forces at Irapuato are in exceptionally fine condition to take the field.

Predict Rebel Defeat
Military attaches believe President Obregon has sufficient strength to crush the rebels in the north as well as the insurgents under General Guadalupe Sanchez, in Vera Cruz.

They intimated that it was President Obregon's intention first to eliminate all rebel forces under command of General Enrique Estrada, who now holds Guadalajara, in the state of Jalisco and then keep the roads to the north open.

Afterwards, President Obregon is expected to turn his attention to the state of Vera Cruz where he could consolidate his armies with those mobilized around Esperanza and crush the last remnants of the Huertista rebels, who are now seeking refuge in the city of Vera Cruz.

La Follette Recovers
From Recent Illness

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, Republican of Wisconsin, who has been ill for the last month with an attack of grippe, is rapidly convalescing, it was announced today at his capitol office. The senator is able to walk about his home but under physician's orders and is not permitted to be interviewed. It is not expected he will return to his post in the senate for another week.

Abandon All Hope Of U. S. Flyers' Survival

DOVER, Eng., Dec. 14.—Hope that Lawrence B. Sperry, young American aviator, escaped death when his airplane fell into the English channel, was abandoned today.

Searchers have not yet found the body, but they picked up Sperry's air jacket a mile distant from the wreckage of the machine.

ENVOY FOR OBREGON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The Mexican embassy here was advised today that Governor Ramon Ross, one of the Mexican government's negotiators in the recent recognition conference, has left Mexico City for Washington, presumably as a special envoy of President Obregon.

Social EventBenefit Success

The Christmas sale for the benefit of the building fund of the Thursday Afternoon club, yesterday afternoon, at 1253 South Brand boulevard, was a great success. Mrs. Chauncey K. Lake, chairman of the ways and means committee was in charge of the affair.

The cooked food booth, under Mrs. S. D. Vantine, assisted by Mrs. Charles Dunlop, occupied the display window of the store room, and was largely patronized. Mrs. McNaughton Barnes, curator of the arts and crafts section, had a most attractive array of fancywork. Hot dogs and coffee were in the hands of Mrs. Lake, also the sale of "Burning Perume." Gaily painted wooden toys in charge of Miss Elsie Gould and Miss Doris Howe were Glendale made by Billy Gould and Sam Rich. The ice cream booth was in charge of Mrs. A. G. Coleman. The ever-popular grab bag was conducted by Mrs. J. W. Sharpe and Mrs. E. J. Morgan in a fair and impartial manner.

The doll booth was one of the most attractive, with Mrs. L. C. Denman in charge. The five dozen dolls, which were uniform in size, were dressed by Mrs. Denman personally in as many varied costumes as there were dolls.

Mrs. A. J. Becker and Mrs. C. N. Wilson were in charge of the apron booth.

Community Party

The informal community party held last night at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse for the newcomers to Glendale proved to be a most enjoyable affair.

All the guests were received in the auditorium where a fine program was presented including a welcome by the president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, Mrs. Daniel Campbell; piano solo by Miss Beattie Long of the Emerson School of Self-Expression; Oriental dance by Katherine Sonnenberg of the Pearl Kallier school; two vocal numbers by Helen McDade, "Sunlight" (Harriet Ware) and "Flower Rain" (Schneider). She was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. H. R. Boyer; two readings in costume by Adele Loyd of the Emerson School of Self-Expression, "When Women Rule in 1976" and "The Ideal," Monica Craig, pianist, read and beautifully "Scherzo B Flat Minor" (Rosenbloom).

E. R. Tucker, director of Community Service, was present and gave a short talk and later in the evening A. L. Baird, president of Community Service organization, greeted those present.

Following the program an informal social hour was held in the foyer and refreshments served. Compliments have been showered on Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward, chairman of the committee, and her assistants, Mrs. Frank Ayars and Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, for the splendid program they arranged for the evening.

Jolly Kid Party

The Aztec room at the C. G. Putnam home, 424 North Glendale avenue, provided a colorful background yesterday for a jolly "kid" party, the annual Christmas affair of the Maids' and Young Matrons' Section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, of which Mrs. Putnam is curator.

Those attending came in juvenile attire and gathered about a gay Christmas tree to dress dolls and arrange toys for Christmas gifts for the kiddies at the Kings Daughters Nursery in Los Angeles. Luncheon was enjoyed at noon and "kid" games were played during the day.

Mrs. H. E. Thimm was awarded the prize for the cleverest costume doll.

Mrs. J. H. Toal arranged the affair.

Mrs. Putnam announced that at the next section meeting, January 10, layettes will be made for the Los Angeles Maternity cottage.

Delphiens Study

"The Dramatic Entertainment of the Renaissance," involving the introduction of the "Interlude," "The Masque" and the subject, "Comedia dell' Arte," was the topic discussed at the group meetings of Alpha Delta chapter of the Delphiens, Thursday morning.

In the absence of Mrs. B. W. Bolton, leader of the Ivy group, Mrs. V. Rapp conducted the discussion on the topic of the day. The meeting was at the home of Mrs. E. D. Yard, 421 North Maryland.

The Lotus group met at the home of Mrs. Barton Manbert, 621 South Columbia street, with Mrs. Paul C. Mason, the leader of the group, in charge.

The next meeting will be a general chapter meeting the second Thursday in January.

Plans for a parish dinner January 3 were discussed yesterday at the all-day meeting of St. Mark's Guild at the church. The members met in the morning and after a pot luck luncheon, Mrs. A. A. Bassett presided over a short business session.

In anticipation of the election of officers January 10, a nominating committee was appointed with Mrs. B. O. Holbrook, chairman, and Mesdames J. H. Farber, B. B. Atwood and Annette Powers, members.

The next meeting of the Guild will be December 27.

Luncheon Honor

Mrs. Z. L. Hesse of 450 West Dryden street entertained yesterday with a daintily appointed pink and white luncheon complimenting Miss Margaret West of 310 North Maryland avenue, who will soon become the bride of Galen H. Jackson of Long Beach.

Central P-T-A.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon of the Central Avenue Parent-Teachers association the teachers of the school were in charge of the program which proved to be most enjoyable.

The program included a group of songs by the pupils of Miss Olive Taylor's class and piano solos by Mrs. Helen I. Miner.

The address of the afternoon was given by Superintendent R. D. White on educational matters. During the business session which was presided over by the president, Mrs. R. L. Young were made for an elaborate reception and tea to be given after the holidays for purchasing books necessary for the pupils in their reading classes. Mrs. E. R. Ripley, chairman of the ways and means committee and Mrs. John Cole, chairman of the program committee will be in charge of all arrangements. They will appoint their assistants at a later date.

Miss Olive Taylor's class was awarded the first prize for the largest attendance of mothers and Miss Elizabeth Edwards' class second prize.

Announcement was made relative to the French classes to be organized after Christmas with Mrs. LeCompt as teacher. Mrs. LeCompt is a very competent French teacher, being French herself and having taught the language in France. These classes are open to all interested Glendaleans at a nominal charge, part of the proceeds to be applied to the Central Avenue Parent-Teacher association fund.

A resolution was passed to send a gift and letter of condolence to Mrs. Elsie Harwood, who less than a month ago lost her father and more recently her son.

The next meeting of the association will be held the second Thursday evening in January in conjunction with the "Fathers' auxiliary. At this time Judge Sidney B. Reeve will be the speaker of the evening. A fine musical program will also be presented.

SHOW DEDICATES NEW AUDITORIUM

Fitting Program Is Given By Students; Large Crowd Present at Event

squad. "Breezy" Elliott made a talk in which he expressed regret at not being able to return and play on the next year's team, which he said he felt sure would capture the state pennant.

Program Is Delayed
These presentation addresses came well along in a program that was full and dragged, owing largely to the failure of the public to appear on time. Being a half hour late at the start, unfamiliarity with new stage equipment and other delays caused the final curtain to remain up until perilously near "the witching hour."

As a whole, this year's variety show is conceded to be the best the students have turned out in the decade of their efforts. Snap-ness and originality were evident in the majority of numbers and some rose to the standards of "big time" stuff, notably the piano work of A. J. Wolter and "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," the senior class act, while the juniors with "Jazz-Jazz" gave the last year men a merry race for their money.

Other than the above, the numbers were average, although "The Trysting Place," Booth Tarkington's clever playlet, directed by Charlotte Busby, promised much, and the High School orchestra, directed by Mrs. Dora L. Gibson, rendered excellently a number of difficult compositions, being handicapped only by the size and acoustic qualities of the new auditorium, to which they will have to adapt themselves by practice.

Other Numbers
The only act on the program omitted was a reading by Miss Edna Stearns, which will be given tonight. "Town Gossip," by the combined Glee clubs, arranged and directed by Mrs. Florence Parker, offered some novel numbers, among them "Jazz & Blow," a satire on local realty conditions. "Courtship Hollandaize" was given by Owen Warner and Fredrick Marshall. "A Dark Consultation" showed Murphy & Cunningham in a novelty bit. "Pipe Dream" presented Alex McDougall and Nancy Grant.

The following cast appeared in "The Trysting Place": Doris Os- mun, Carleton Lawson, Ruth Ber- rier, Margaret Longley, Horace Anderson and Kenneth Helm. Mr. Brewster supervised the produc- tion.
Karl Dow and Thomas Woods, Jr., took turns with Mrs. Gibson in directing the High School or- chestra. Wilhelmina Koethen, Mary Sherrick, Lucile Beach and Allimae Lantz were accompanists. Glenn Roberts was general man- ager. The grand piano was fur- nished by the George T. Birkel company. Philippine furniture by the Reed Furniture Manufacturing company, of Glendale, and plants by Downing & Cox, local nurserymen.

The stage effects deserve spe- cial mention. They were installed by the Fredericks-Tweed com- pany, of Hollywood, and follow the latest eastern stage developments, where lighting effects are pro- duced upon rich velours, in any desired color and tone, rather than by the old-fashioned painted scenery.

FIXTURES DELAY TO SCHOOL MOVE

New High School Building Will Be Occupied Soon After Holidays

Although the new high school building on East Broadway is ready for occupancy, the move will not be made during the Christmas vacation, due to the delay in one carload of fixtures for the science building, according to the decision reached by the board of trustees at a meeting last night.

From latest advices received, this car has not yet left the factory at Sheboygan, Wis., and as it contains supplies and fixtures which are essential to study in the general science, domestic science and physics courses, the school work would be seriously retarded, it was said.

The annual Christmas vacation will start tonight at the close of school and last night Wednesday, January 2. The teachers' institute is scheduled in Los Angeles for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Many of the students are planning to assist in local stores during the holiday rush. After school is resumed in January, all equipment received will be installed in the new build- ing, as well as that which is not in use every day in the old build- ing. Consequently, when the final move is made, it is expected that only one, or possibly one-half of a school day will be lost.

Bids were opened for the land- scaping of the grounds and the grading of the athletic field, as well as for the construction of the first unit of the bleachers, which will contain the dressing rooms to be used until the new gymnasium is completed.

The bids were referred to the engineer for checking and report at a special meeting to be held next Monday night.

Building Permits Are Only $400,000 Short of Total Sought for Year

Less than $400,000 in building permits is needed to shove the total over the $10,000,000 mark for 1923, and with sixteen days left in which to do this, municipal Building Superintendent H. C. Vandewater anticipates no trouble in reaching the goal set at the first of the year.

December's business so far has totaled $386,668, with the total for 1923 standing at $9,608,828.

BATTLE IS PREDICTED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—A fight will be made in the house on committee assignments approved by the regular Republican organization, Representative John M. Nelson, leader of the La Follette progressives, announced. Nelson's statement was made after the assignments had been completed by a Republican caucus for presentation to the House. The protest of the Progressives will be on the ground that they have been denied membership on important committees.

ARREST 15 IN RAIDS

LONG BEACH, Dec. 14.—

Swooping down on several al- leged notorious rendezvous in the Signal Hill and harbor districts, deputy sheriffs arrested fifteen men in what was declared a new drive against holiday bootleggers. A quantity of liquor was also seized, the officers reported. Twelve of the men arrested were placed in the city jail here, where they were charged with violation of the Wright act, vagrancy and suspicion. The other three men were taken to Los Angeles and held on suspicion of having at- tacked a 14 year old girl at Signal Hill recently.

OPPOSED TO COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Tak- ing issue with President Coolidge's announced opposition to the re- cognition to the Russian soviet government by the United States, Congressman James A. Frear, Re- publican of Wisconsin, in a speech in the house urged the immediate resumption of trade relations with Russia and declared that recognition could be accomplished after satisfactory commercial re- lations were established. Frear spent several weeks in Russia last summer making a study of economic and political conditions.

REPORT ON DRUG PROBE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—Re- porting their inability to get evi- dence against 'narcotic peddlers' at the Sawtelle soldiers' home, and declaring that several of the inmates of the home are addicts, Deputy Sheriffs Bell and Peoples of the narcotic squad asked officials at the home to try to straighten out the men who have fallen victim to narcotics. The officers in their report, said they had given officials at the hospital a list of names of the men who are regular users of narcotics.

STEAMER IN DISTRESS

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—The steamship Gaston is in distress off Cape Henry, according to a radio message picked up by the Charles- ton navy yard today. The vessel said it was unable to make progress against heavy winds, due to trouble with its engines.

POPULATION FOR CITY OVER 50,000

Evidence Shows Glendale Has Set New World Mark In Recent Growth

estimate has been allowed to run with the others, pulling down the general average considerably.

With a population of over 50,000 and a building year that will exceed 10,000,000 when New Year's eve rings in 1924, Glendale is seen to be entering the great development period of its history, a period comparable with that which has lifted Holly- wood and Long Beach from obs- curity to world fame.

Glendale is the next Hollywood and the next Long Beach. A six- story building is now nearing com- pletion at the northeast corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway, to be the future home of the Glen- dale branch of the Security Trust & Savings bank. When, two years ago, the Hollywood branch of this same institution was completed, a great celebration was held, joined in by the entire community, for it marked Hollywood's first six- story building.

Today Hollywood is putting up a dozen or more thirteen-story buildings, the height limit. Long Beach tells a similar story. Glen- dale will tell a similar story. Two years from today there will be height limit buildings in Glendale, and the population of the city will be over 100,000.

These are plain, ordinary state- ments of facts, obvious to think- ing people and increasingly obvi- ous to big capitalists and invest- ors of Los Angeles, San Francisco and eastern cities, who are bring- ing large quantities of money into Glendale, in realization of the commanding position it has taken as a southern California city.

And, folks, Glendale's popula- tion is now past the 50,000 mark. You tell the world!

The quality of our kindness de- pends on how much effort is re- quired.

YEGGMAN MAKES ESCAPE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—

While more than fifty police of- ficers armed with sawed off shot- guns, formed a guard around a building in North Broadway, a yeggman, who had been caught opening a safe, slipped through the cordon of officers and escaped. Two officers who were passing the building, discovered the bandit trying to open the safe. Hearing the officers approaching the man turned off the flashlight by which he was working and fled. The officers fired several shots at the fleeing man and traces of blood found later led officers to believe their bullets took effect.

WOULD CARRY LIQUOR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Con- gressional approval of the steps taken by the state department to permit foreign ships to bring sealed liquor within the American three-mile limit in return for an extension of the search and seizure privilege to twelve miles, was asked yesterday in a bill intro- duced in the house by Representative Edmunds, Republican of Pennsylvania. The bill would permit both foreign and Ameri- can vessels to carry liquor inside the three mile limit so long as it was under seal. This is now pro- hibited under decision of the United States supreme court.

U. S. MAY INTERCEDE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The American government is awaiting a favorably opportunity to inter- ceede in behalf of Lieutenant Hoover Griffith, ex-army officer, now serving a sentence in a Ger- man prison for attempting to kid- nap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, it was announced by Representa- tive Roy Fitzgerald yesterday af- ter a conference with Secretary of State Hughes. Later, after being informed of Fitzgerald's an- nouncement, the state department denied that any "informal inter- cession" was intended.

GET INCREASE IN PAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.— Workers in government navy yards throughout the country will receive slight increases in pay beginning January 1, 1924, the navy department announced today.

Police Act to Halt Communist Disorders

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—Strong po- lice precautions were taken this afternoon to suppress disorders. Communist leaders planned dem- onstrations on a large scale. The police were ordered to quell them at any cost.

SENATOR REED ATTACKS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 14.—Senator James A. Reed here today launched an attack upon the pro- posed official representation of the United States on the inter- lated reparation commission. "A subterfuge of official rep- resentation is a device worthy of latter-day hypocrisy," Senator Reed declared. "An unof- ficial mediator is always an un- official meddler. He has every kind of capacity to get the country into trouble, and has no power to keep it out."

CHOSEN FOR MEETING

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Hartford, Conn., has been selected as the 1924 meeting place by the Na- tional Association of Professional Baseball leagues, the governing body of minor leagues. The se- lection was made at the sugges- tion of Dan O'Neil of the Eastern league, who pointed out the proximity of Hartford to New York, where the major leagues probably will meet next year.

HEAVY STORM RAGING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—A storm of considerable intensity over Ontario, Canada, is moving rapidly eastward and will be at- tended by strong south and south- west winds, probably reaching gale force and shifting to north- west tonight, the weather bureau has announced. Southwest storm warnings are displayed from Cape Hatteras to East Port, Maine.

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.—Thou- sands of persons attended the fu- neral of Lord Shaughnessy, and throughout its miles of tracks and round houses and terminals all the trains on the Canadian Pacific railroad stopped still in a two minute tribute of silence to the chairman of its board of directors. Services were held at St. Patrick's church. The pro- cession to the cemetery included dozens of Canadian notables, Premier Mackenzie King, Sir Lomar Gouin, minister of justice, and Sir Dandurand, officially repre- sented the government.

COUNCIL ORDERS STREET WIDENING

Central Avenue Will Be Made
100 Feet Wide, Lexington
To San Fernando

test filed. The one filed yesterday was merely advisory. In substance the report stated that the original legal protest filed against the opening and widening of Central avenue, according to the check made in the city engineer's office, showed 51.5 per cent of the frontage on Central avenue had signed.

The law requires, however, that the percentage of protestants be calculated on the frontage of all streets and parts of streets in the assessment district. This was found to be 42.4 per cent.

In checking over the protest filed on December 13 he found that 55-3 per cent of the frontage on Central avenue south of Broadway had signed, and that the petition for the work filed on the same day carried the signatures of 48-7 per cent of the residents on this avenue. In an effort to locate them on the map in the city engineer's office, he could find only 48.4 per cent on the protest and 42.1 on the petition.

Mass of Figures
“It is interesting to note in this connection,” he said, “that 1915 feet of the frontage on Central avenue is signed on BOTH the petition and protest filed December 13.”

The report gave further data regarding the percentages that would obtain if the two projects, north and south of Broadway, were combined.

An overwhelming mass of figures was presented to the members of the council by both sides, and as a result nobody for the moment seemed to know just where the matter stood, not even the proponents or opponents of the idea. As it appeared to the council, the sentiment was about evenly divided.

John E. Paul, 161 South Pacific, led the opposition and strong talks in support of the plan were made by John S. Knox, 435 South Central, and W. F. Tower, Charles E. Guthrie openly refused statements that had been made regarding his interest in the matter and supported the improvement.

After listening to arguments pro and con for over an hour, Councilman C. E. Kimlin stated that he believed the ground had been covered, and requested the council to vote on the matter, saying he was in favor of widening the avenue. He was supported by Mayor Robinson. On roll call on the motion to deny all protests, made by Councilman Sam Davis, and seconded by Councilman H. A. Horn, the vote was unanimous. Work will probably not be started before January 1, 1924, as it takes considerable time for condemnation proceedings to go through the courts.

'OH-HO' TO RAISE CHRISTMAS FUND

Exchange Club to Brighten Yuletide for Kids Who Might Lose Out

The announcement that "Oh-Ho" will act as Santa Claus to Glendale kiddos has been received with citywide enthusiasm. Expressions of praise of the idea have been heard from all sources. Through the good work of so many organizations in Glendale, such as the Salvation Army, Elks' Christmas Charity fund, Community Service Christmas Cheer fund, and such worthy workers, Christmas dinners and necessities will be supplied to the many needy.

The Exchange Club's idea for the "Oh-Ho" show is not to duplicate the work of other organizations. The show is to be staged to raise money strictly as a means of bringing Santa Claus to so many youngsters, 99 per cent of whom would awaken Christmas morning to disappointment, were not their plea for a toy or a doll or Christmas candy met through this means. The 99 per cent are the children of poor families, who would otherwise not be able to supply even an inexpensive gift. But these children have the same yearnings, the same trust that Santa Claus is coming on Christmas, and the Exchange Club is hiring the reindeer, hitching up the sled, getting the sleigh bells tuned up and just going to see that these kiddies are given a Christmas.

Santa Claus Coming
In other words, the Exchange Club has just received a radio from Santa Claus, and the jolly old fellow is going to be in Glendale, and that is assured.

This idea of getting in touch with Santa Claus came from Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson, president of the Exchange Club. The Glendale postoffice has already more than a hundred letters for "Santa Claus." These letters have a plea that would touch the heart strings of anyone who would read them, and when this became known to the Exchange Club, that organization unanimously went on record to play the role of Santa, and they took hold of the "Oh-Ho" show as the best means of raising the necessary money.

"Oh-Ho" is going to be staged at an admission that everyone can afford, and take the whole family and the neighbors as well. It will rank as the biggest theatrical bargain this city has ever known. The show is nothing short of a wonder. The Exchange Club is going to give everyone the opportunity of seeing the biggest and best show that has ever been staged here at a price less than that ever charged for any other show, and, then, the money made is going to be used to see that Santa Claus visits the homes of the poor kiddies of this city.

Harrower In Charge
Dr. Henry R. Harrower is chairman of the "Oh-Ho" show committee for the Exchange Club. He is lining up his bunch of husters who are going to put this event over to beat anything of its kind ever attempted here.

Hot Stuff! Zantippe Is Given Cold Mitts In Far North and Many Promises

Returning from an ice-skating trip to the Far North, where he campaigned in the Tujunga river territory of the presidential fiasco, August September, Esq., Professor Xavius Zantippe reports winning thousands of votes from the denizens of the igloos there.

"The citizens in my unworthy rival's own territory are now turning against him," the learned professor states, "shocked and repelled by the low moral plane of his platform, which he has dragged to the sordid level of his laundry ticket. I come along with my highbrow platform, with a special moral plank hewed out of solid hypocrisy by professional moralists, and they naturally fall for me strong. I tell you, that lowbrow stuff is the bunk."

Somewhat Downhearted
But Professor Zantippe is downhearted these days, in spite of the outward cloak of optimism he wears before the public. Not all is roses in his home. It seems there must always be some fly in the ointment.

The particular fly in this instance is Miss Xcellentie, the professor's favorite daughter, who in his absence went and entered the movies ostensibly to raise funds for the furtherance of her father's political ambitions. With the tears streaming down his heavily bearded, the learned professor heard the pathetic details from his defiant spouse. "We got to have one breadwinner in the family, don't we?" she demanded. "We ain't going to starve, just to prove you can't be elected president, even if poor little Xcellentie has to go to Hollywood," she snifled. "And, besides, just think how it will strengthen your position with the film blue."

"Blockheads!" snorted the professor, taking a violent chew of Blacksmith's Arm and expectorating to the four winds. "—think how it will strengthen your position with the film blue to have a daughter in the films," she finished.

"What is her position?" suddenly demanded Professor Zantippe, brightening. "It must be something pretty important," said Mrs. Z. They call her an Xtra."

With a gurgling sigh the con- signment of Blacksmith's Arm slid down the learned professor's oesophagus, and he went sallow. Clutching desperately at his stomach, he vanished with a gurgling sound.

Miss Xcellentie, when found by the reporters in the "cave of the winds," readily assented to a statement of her beauty secrets. "Although beauty is only skin deep," she said, "it's a lot too deep for some people!"

We admitted it was too deep for us. "I am sacrificing my face to help Papa get elected," she went on. "It's a principle with me. I'm a suffragette. No one knows how I suffer!"

"But your beauty secrets?" he pleaded. "Oh, yes, my beauty secrets," the dear thing lisped. "So so. In the first place, one must have a face to start with. Anyone with a face can make it beautiful. But without a face it's rather a hopeless task, don't you think?"

Not Given O. K.
We thought so, but modestly suggested that one might shave the back of one's head and grow one. This suggestion, however, did not meet with the young lady's approval. "No, that wouldn't work," she said impatiently. "One must have the face. With a face, one can do miracles. Without it, the movies should not be chosen for a profession."

"But if the face is one that only a mother can love?" "Ah!" and she brightened. "That's easy. In the first place, I am against rouge. Alcohol taken internally, in sufficient quantities, will give the skin a beautiful red tinge far more natural."

"And as for wrinkles, a hot curling-iron applied to the spot will leave the skin as smooth as a baby's—after a few weeks in the hospital. For the hands, I recommend a softener and beautifier, good greasy dishwater, not quite boiling. This makes the use of creams and sleeping gloves unnecessary."

"After all this, if men don't turn around and stare at you when you pass, stick out your tongue at them! That always gets results."

'Stop' Signs to Warn Autoists of Schools
Following the receipt of a letter of recommendation from Chief of Police J. D. Fraser, the council last night instructed the city attorney to prepare an amendment to the city traffic ordinance to provide for the painting of "stop" signs on the approaches to all schools in the city of Glendale, following the lead of Los Angeles.

Chief Fraser explained that many school children had been injured by motorists lately, and the strength of the force did not permit of placing an officer on duty at all the schools.

These signs will be painted on the pavement, with safety zones painted for the use of the school children. It is proposed to make the stop signs effective from 8 a. m. until 4 p. m.

Autoist Flees After Midnight Collision
An anonymous report received by the police at midnight last night stated that there had been an accident on North Maryland avenue.

Upon investigation they found that a Southern California Gas company car, driven by M. W. Elbert, 308 Elk street, had been struck by a Dodge or Overland touring car. Walcott was backing out of the gas company plant and the touring car was going north on Maryland avenue. The party in the touring car did not stop after the accident. Mr. Walcott suffered slight cuts on the head and was taken to Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. The car was badly smashed.

Storm Uproots Trees That Beautified Home
Effects of the recent windstorm are very evident at the John Robert White home at 347 North Orange street, where five of the beautiful, big trees in the large yard were completely uprooted.

For many years the White home has been admired by Glendaleans and visitors in the city and the loss of the five trees is keenly regretted by the White family and their friends.

Such a demonstration of humanity, he said, made him begin his ministry with a feeling of satisfaction.

DENIES APPLICATION
WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The interstate commerce commission today denied the application of the Colorado, Columbus & Mexican railroad for authority to construct 550 miles of railroad in New Mexico, Texas and Arizona on the ground that the project "has not been well studied, construction cost of $12,000,000 has been much under estimated and would not have enough traffic to justify its construction."

SECRECY COVERS CLUB STANDINGS

Ballots Must Be Placed In Sealed Receptacle In Federal Bank

By J. A. MALCOLM
Salesmanship Club Manager
In order to maintain the strictest secrecy as to the standing of any of the club members, or as to how many subscriptions any one has secured or will secure during the final period of the campaign, the salesmanship club is being brought to a close under a sealed ballot box. No subscriptions whatsoever will be accepted through the campaign department during the final period of this campaign.

Club members or their friends must deposit their subscriptions and cash in the sealed ballot box located in the Federal Commercial and Savings bank at Brand boulevard and Wilson avenue. By so doing the campaign manager or any one connected with The Glendale Evening News or any other person cannot possibly know the credit standing of any of the respective club members, which precludes any possibility of favoritism and insures fairness to the minutest degree.

Locked and sealed the ballot box was placed in the Federal Commercial and Savings bank last Monday and it will remain there until the close of the campaign at eight o'clock Thursday night, December 20. The closing of the campaign will take place in the above bank and all subscriptions have to be placed in the ballot box before the hour of eight next Thursday night, December 20, or they will not be counted. There will be no exceptions to this rule, and everyone is warned in advance so that there can be no one who can say that they did not receive notice to that effect.

Special Blanks
The campaign department has prepared special blanks for the club members and each club member is asked to use them, as it will assist the judges in making the final count and each club member can make out their own statement in duplicate and retain a copy so that they will know exactly how many credits they will have in the ballot box at the final closing of the bell. It is thought that the final counting of the credits will take about an hour if the club members use the specially prepared blanks.

After reading this you still have five days in which to do some good work and club members should bear in mind that every subscription that they get before the close of the campaign will place them that much closer to the prizes they most desire. It's not what you have done in the past that is going to win one of the grand prizes for you, although that helps, but what you do from now until the final curtain of the campaign has been rung down. A few more clubs of subscriptions will make a lot of difference in the standing of some of the club members and we can truthfully say that at the end of the second period the first four leaders were so close that one or two clubs of subscriptions would have made a difference in the awarding of the prizes if the campaign had closed at that time.

It's up to you. You know if you are near the top of the list and if you lose one of the grand prizes by a few credits you are the one who will be sorry.

County Grand Jury Inspects Local Jail
The members of the Los Angeles County grand jury paid Glendale a visit yesterday afternoon and inspected the jail at police headquarters. From here they proceeded to Eagle Rock. They were on their regular tour of inspection of all jails in the county.

While no statement was made while in the city, it is expected that their report will contain recommendations looking toward the relief of the crowded condition of the county jail at Los Angeles.

All local prisoners are sent to the county jail after being sentenced, and are only held there while awaiting trial, or under investigation.

Autoist Arrested On Intoxication Charge
A man giving his name as Billy Leonard, and his address as Southern California Edison Company, Camp No. 9, was arrested by Officer McLean in front of the Bentley Lumber company on Los Feliz road yesterday afternoon at 4 p. m., and is held at headquarters, charged with driving while intoxicated.

Upon searching his car, a pint bottle of liquor was found, police say.

An anonymous report received by the police at midnight last night stated that there had been an accident on North Maryland avenue.

Upon investigation they found that a Southern California Gas company car, driven by M. W. Elbert, 308 Elk street, had been struck by a Dodge or Overland touring car. HOLIDAY AIR AT ATWATER SCHOOL

Faculty Members Are Guests Of Principal at Tea And Informal Dance

It has been Christmas all week at the Atwater school and a visit to the new school building finds an atmosphere of cheer and good will which proclaims the season almost without words.

In the office rooms of the principal are the beautiful poinsettias the Christmas flower, and in each of the eleven class rooms was a beautifully decorated Christmas tree which had been decorated by the pupils assisted by the teachers.

The first social event of this week of cheer was a tea given by Miss Rosalind Gates, principal of the Atwater school, her guests being the teachers of that school and a few special guests.

Musical Program
The party was given in the kindergarten rooms which were especially decorated for the occasion and the orange scheme of the room further enhanced by orange cushions and decorations. A program including the following numbers was contributed by the guests: Piano solo, Miss Mildred Anderson; clarinet solo, Elmer Overholts; piano solo, Miss Maude Williams; acrobatic dance, Edna Lepoint, a pupil of the school; trio, Miss Gates, Miss Anderson and Mr. Overholts.

Dancing was the diversion and punch was served by Miss Myrtle Davis. Later the guests adjourned to the teachers' room, where, at a table on which a miniature Christmas tree, place cards and favors featured the Yuletide season, and tea and cake and ice cream and candy were served by the hostess.

DEMOCRATS NAME CLUB'S OFFICERS

Chance for Victory Bright In 1924 Campaign, Is Claim of M. B. Jones

The Democratic club of Glendale was reorganized in preparation for the coming presidential campaign, at a meeting that was held last night at the home of Col. Tom C. Thornton, 715 Kenneth road, at which a number of the most influential members of the party in this city pledged their efforts to insure the victory of their party at the polls in 1924.

Declaring that a hard battle lies ahead of the Democracy of the nation in the coming campaign, Mattison B. Jones stressed the need for organization, and stated that, in spite of the difficulties that lie ahead, the party stands an excellent chance of scoring a victory next year.

"California's course is being closely watched by the eastern states," said Mr. Jones, "and on the action of the Democrats in this state depends the decision of the party in the east. I hope to see the selection of a California delegation to the national convention that will be instructed to work for the nomination of William G. McAdoo, and if this can be accomplished it will bring to his support

ELECT MRS. WHITE RED CROSS HEAD

Secretary of Local Chapter Is Chosen President
At Annual Meet

The names of Mrs. H. E. Bartlett and Mrs. John Robert White have been closely associated in the activities of the Glendale chapter of the American Red Cross, for they have worked side by side five years as chairman and secretary of the local chapter, as leaders in Red Cross relief and philanthropic work, and yesterday at the annual meeting of the chapter, followed by choice of directors and election of officers, it was most fitting that Mrs. White should be unanimously chosen to succeed Mrs. Bartlett as chairman.

Directors elected following the report of Mrs. Lillian E. Dow of the nominating committee were Mesdames H. E. Bartlett, John Robert White, W. W. Worley, E. W. W. Hayward, C. L. Peckham, J. G. Huntley, R. P. Jodon, J. H. Daugherty, R. A. Blackburn, S. C. Packer, Daniel McLean, E. W. Gilliland, Arthur Brown, E. J. Morgan, J. W. Webster, John Hobbs, Lillian E. Dow, Miss Neva Veysey and L. T. Rowley and Chalmers D. Day.

Other officers chosen were Mrs. W. W. Worley, vice chairman; Mrs. S. C. Packer, recording secretary; Miss Veysey, treasurer; Mesdames H. E. Bartlett, L. E. Dow and E. W. W. Hayward members of the executive committee.

Cut Nurse's Salary

In addition to the election there was another feature of the meeting of the chapter, the decision that, owing to a limited amount of money for the coming year, the $50 a month given for the maintenance of the city nurse be discontinued. Several years ago when the city council found that the city could not finance the expenses of the city nurse, the Red Cross chapter, upon the suggestion of Mrs. Bartlett, pledged $600 towards this cause. Now the Red Cross chapter has but a limited amount of money for future needs it was unanimously decided to notify the council that beginning January 1 the $50 will have to be secured from another source.

During the meeting Mrs. Dow and Mrs. Daugherty reported on the recent donations to the government hospital at Sawtelle. Mrs. Bartlett reviewed the home service work and Mrs. E. W. Gilliland presented the plans for the Christmas celebration at the Barlow sanitarium.

Review Year's Work

In reviewing the past year Mrs. Bartlett gave as outstanding activities, the collection of clothing in November and December 1922 for Near East relief; the making of forty layettes for overseas work; the sponsoring of the "Learn to Swim Week;" the collection of clothing, jellies and jams for the Sawtelle hospital; making and equipping of fifty comfort bags to be sent at Christmas to service men in the Hawaiian Islands; the $600 to the expenses of the city nurse; making of fifty kimono for Japanese relief; and the collection of over $3800 for Japanese relief.

Present at the meeting were Mesdames H. E. Bartlett, John Robert White, J. H. Daugherty, C. L. Peckham, Lillian E. Dow, E. W. Hayward, E. W. Gilliland, J. G. Huntley and W. W. Worley. Upon the suggestion of Mrs. C. L. Peckham a vote of thanks and appreciation was tendered H. E. Bartlett for the great assistance he has given the chapter during Mrs. Bartlett's terms as chairman.

Plan For Christmas

On Monday the Atwater Parent-Teacher association, of which Mrs. E. V. Bacon is president, held a successful meeting and Christmas plans were completed.

A food drive resulted in a generous response and non-parishable groceries were donated and will be distributed each week to the less fortunate as need arises.

On Thursday in each of the grades on the second floor, Christmas programs, consisting of songs, recitations and plays, were given. A visit was paid by Santa Claus, who brought for each a "sack" of candy and nuts, and a rosy checked apple.

It was whispered that the robust and rotund Santa Claus who had a jest for every one was Miss Gates herself but the rumor could not be verified, although an inquiry for the principal received an evasive reply.

At 3 o'clock a party was given for the "Sub-Kindergartners," that is the kindergartners-to-be next year, in the kindergarten room and little tots appeared accompanied by older members of the family.

On Friday morning the grades on the first floor held their programs with a visit from Santa Claus. In the afternoon, the moving picture "Borrowed Plumage" was exhibited for the benefit of the picture machine fund. The performance will be given again this evening.

COMMENT That's All

That "Centennial Stump" Grow Big Trees In State
Another Prize Winner Due Power of Classified Ads

By Gil A. Cowan

Have you ever heard of the "centennial stump"? It is an old story, for only the stump of one of California's famous trees remains, which years ago was shipped from Porterville to Philadelphia, where it took its place in the centennial celebration.

Indeed, the stump of one tree in the giant forest was as large as a house and people in the east acclaimed it "another one of California's lies." So to settle the argument, Congress appointed a commission to investigate and found that the largest trees on the North American continent were to be found in what is now known as Sequoia national park.

The Porterville civic bodies have decided to acquire the modern age with the reputation of the "centennial stump" and in their municipal auto camp ground a replica is being built which makes a commodious four-room house. One can hardly believe their eyes, but those local enthusiasts tell you that trees much larger than that of the "centennial stump" are to be found in one of the playgrounds of the Pacific.

Work is now progressing on plans for Glendale's float in the Tournament of Roses parade on New Year's. It is one of the biggest advertising propositions this city has ever had, for the thousands upon thousands of tourists make it a point to see the pageant of flowers as it passes in review in the streets of the Crown city January 1.

Glendale is particularly fortunate in having a designer of the ability of L. W. Chobe. It is fortunate in having acquired so many first prizes that the public anticipates something fine as Glendale's entry swings into line. May the 1924 float again win!

The power of classified advertising is exemplified in the columns of The Glendale Evening News. The hundreds of small liners appearing in this issue are proof that advertising pays.

Recently we have been reading several texts on advertising. Would that all business men studied the advantages to be gained by the proper use of printer's ink. Many stores and particularly the smaller shops of Glendale are losing dollars daily by not being represented in The Glendale Evening News.

For a fact, no medium gives better results than "your home town paper."

Under the caption, "Uncle Sam Permits Indians to Use Dope in Religion," Edward H. Cotton, writing in the Christian Register, reveals an interesting situation that confronts the American government at a time when the whole civilized world is grappling with the opium habit.

The Indians referred to are those of the Southwest. The dope is known under the names of peyote or mescal. The effect of this drug is to produce hallucinations of such a nature as to convince the user he is experiencing the ecstasies of religion. Hence its growing use in religious rites of the red man.

Peyote is a plant of the cactus family and grows in northern Mexico and southwestern Texas. It resembles, in size and shape, a small carrot. From its top protrudes a fuzzy substance that is eaten. Such men as Havelock Ellis, S. Weir Mitchell and Harvey Wiley have investigated the use of this plant and have declared it a most dangerous form of drug. Its effects cannot be easily shaken off and the victim travels a road leading to absolute incompetency.

Many appeals have been made to Congress for the means to control this growing habit. The board of Indian commissioners has strongly urged its suppression. Yet Congress is apparently loath to interfere with the religious practices of the Indian tribes. Mr. Cotton points out that the peyote habit is a growth that is feeding on religious fervor rather than being an integral part of any rite or ritual of the Indians. The peyote habit is spreading to white communities. People in the areas where peyote grows do nothing but raise and sell this plant. A large and profitable business has grown up about its cultivation and distribution. The traffic is bound to increase and the American people are certain to be confronted with another vexing problem.

One-Sided Contest By
Score of 71-16

The American Legion Post, No. 27, quintet started off the season with a whoop last night by defeating the Victory Post five of Los Angeles by the score of 71-16. The score gives some idea of the one-sidedness of the game.

Eight regulars appeared in the Glendale line-up, as follows: Forwards—Brown, Leggett and Wheeler; centers, Bunker and Dech; guards, Austin, Dick and Hibbard. The all-around playing of Bunker at center featured the game, which was attended by a very good crowd. Francy acted as referee.

A practice game has been scheduled for next Monday night at the high school gym.

Judge Landis, In Threat To Quit Baseball, Calls Bluff of His Opponents

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—It developed today that Judge Landis threw his resignation into the teeth, if any, of the assembled baseball magnates at their annual meeting here and informed them that the commissioner's chair was thereupon and thenceforth as vacant as a haunted house.

Kind hands and willing, however, immediately escorted the worthy judge back upon the throne, rescued the monarchical crown from the corner whence it had rolled and the king was again himself, more a dictator than ever.

This was the same man that was to be called by his right name if he essayed to speak out of turn at any time. He was to be uncrowned, untrodden and disenfranchised from further connection with his great power. The judge lost no time in laying himself open for the business at hand.

"Take Your Job!" "Gentlemen," he is alleged to have said at the outset, "I have been given to understand that you are dissatisfied with my conduct of baseball. I, therefore, wish you to understand that the job is yours at any time. You may have it."

Business of eight National league club owners coming to their collective feet with the assurance that the Landis rule was all very merry so far as they were concerned. Representatives of the Chicago White Sox were equally hasty and solicitous on this score. The rest of the meeting was strangely silent. Seemingly it was still the judge's turn to speak, so he did.

All Happy Again "Apparently," he said, "I am still commissioner of the National league and the Chicago White Sox, and speaking for them, I will say that I am ready to go to the mat with anyone on any issue that strikes their fancy."

Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of the Yankees, who was supposed to have some anti-Landis sentiment under his collar button, then is alleged to have swallowed convulsively and allowed as how he thought the judge was quite a natty individual, all told.

It was then that Landis turned upon the silent, but unrelenting Ban Johnson and pulled him right down off the gallows to such effect that Ban, preserving his dignified silence to the end, walked from the room and did not return. It was the worst beating Johnson has sustained since he came into prominence more than twenty years ago. It also probably was his last attempt to take issue with Landis for the supreme control of baseball.

They Deserted Him

It was said after the meeting that Johnson's silence was prompted by the fact that he realized his banner had been deserted by men who were supposed to have been his staunchest followers and that he did not care to make a pretense of fighting Landis with none to back him up.

The meetings were dying out slowly and naturally today. The draft was restored to two more leagues—the American association and the Pacific Coast league, and only three of the more important minors are now out. They are the International league, Southern association and Texas league. The new draft arrangement is one which allows majors to draft only those players who have had major league experience.

Three Cars in Crash
Woman Slightly Hurt

Miss Chapman, of 1133 Western avenue, was slightly hurt in an automobile accident at 9 o'clock last night on Kenneth road, in which three cars were involved.

A report made to the police by Arthur Worthington, 815 Elmwood avenue, Burbank, states that three cars tried to pass each other at the same time, with disastrous results.

Miss Chapman was slightly cut about the face. Her injuries were not serious.

Beginning at 7:30 o'clock, the program will include Mr. Holland's address on his probation work, a Christmas play by the school children, and a program of musical and dramatic numbers.

Governor Stephens said of the "Oh-Oh" show: "When thinking of the shows I have seen in the past ten years, whether amateur or professional, and Mrs. Stephens and I are great theatergoers, I do not believe I have enjoyed any show as much as I enjoyed 'Oh-Oh' last evening."

Disclaims Honor Of
First Parking Arrest

David Bisno disclaims the distinction of being the first man arrested under the new one-hour parking law.

It seems that the car parked outside his place of business carried no registration certificate, and the arresting officer was informed that the car belonged to Mr. Bisno, but on investigation this report was found to be erroneous.

Mr. Bisno states he is very willing to let some other citizen have the honor, with the attendant penalty.

'SMILIN' THROUGH' TO OPEN SEASON

Atmosphere of Half Century Ago Adds Romance to Opening Event

When the curtain rises on "Smilin' Through" tomorrow night at the Tuesday Afternoon club auditorium, a beautiful old flower garden of fifty years ago will be revealed.

The scenic and building department of the Royal stock company has been working overtime on the production, reports Charles E. Royal, manager, and everything will be in readiness at 8 o'clock to give the hundreds of Glendaleans who will fill the beautiful auditorium the best professional performance they have ever seen in this city.

Many prominent people from Los Angeles are among those who have made season reservations for the program of spoken drama that tomorrow night will inaugurate. Mr. Royal states, and the reserved seats on sale at Matthews confectionery parlor at West Broadway and Orange street are going fast, the prices ranging 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.

Old Wedding Gown
The beautiful wedding gown of fifty years ago, which will be worn by Edythe Elliott in "Smilin' Through," is now on display in one of the windows at Pendroy's department store, where it is causing considerable comment among the women, while more than one T. B. M. (tired business man) has been seen to pause and admire the gown, then walk away whistling, consumed, no doubt, with memories of how the Missus looked that time when they stood there by the altar and said: "I do."

"Smilin' Through" is the play in which Jane Cowl scored what is generally considered her greatest success. It is a play that goes straight to the heart and it is anticipated that the Royal players will, with this superb vehicle for a debut, at once establish themselves as a Glendale institution.

WILL FILM PICTURE IN NERONA

Shoot Scenes In Romeo's Old Home Town

"Romeo and Juliet" in their street clothes. Lillian Gish and Richard Barthelmess out for a stroll

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—"Romeo, wherefore art thou?" "Right here, Lil," says Richard, and then the camera men get in their deadly work.

For Lillian Gish, who almost went to an icy death in "Way Down East," and Richard Barthelmess, who wore tattered pants and bare feet in "Tolable David," are going to be starred in a screen version of Romeo and Juliet.

And the main scenes of the film are to be laid in Verona, famous old city in Italy, the original setting of the "greatest love story of all."

Miss Gish is now in Italy, working on another picture, "Romola." Barthelmess will sail for Italy shortly and will arrive there by the time she is at liberty to start on the new photoplay.

Henry King, the man who directed the filming of "Tolable David" will direct the "Romeo and Juliet" film.

To take the roles of the two famous lovers whose romance was brought to a tragic end through the feuds of the Capulets and the Montagues, has been the desire of almost every big picture star.

Norma Talmadge has almost played it several times. Jane Cowl is another noted star who has considered the venture.

Among the others who would like to be Romeo is Jacob Schildkraut, German film star.

Theda Bara once played it, as did Beverly Bayne and Francis X. Bushman.

SMITH TO LEAVE GOVERNOR POST

Rumored He Won't Be in Next Race, But N. Y. Executive Is Silent

ALBANY, Dec. 14.—Governor Alfred E. Smith will not be a candidate for re-election, regardless of what happens at the next Democratic national convention. This is the report one hears constantly at the state capital, but so far as the governor is concerned, he is "not talking for publication."

In the event that Governor Smith declines to consider a re-nomination at the hands of the Democratic party in this state, present indications are, say the "wise ones" at the capital, that Lieutenant Governor George R. Lunn of Schenectady, stands the best chance of being the Democratic state standard bearer in 1924.

Democratic leaders who have visited the capitol during the last week appear to think that the chances of Governor Smith landing the Democratic nomination for president have bettered materially recently.

Talk at the capitol is that if Governor Smith does not land the presidential nomination he will return to private business in New York.

PARENTS GATHER IN JOINT MEET

P.-T.A. Members and Fathers Auxiliary in Session At Broadway

"Standing room only" was the necessary sign last night, when over 600 pupils, parents, teachers and friends gathered in the auditorium of the Broadway school for the joint meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association and the Fathers' auxiliary. According to reports, it was the largest crowd that has ever been assembled in the auditorium.

This joint gathering was in the nature of an experiment, as the meetings of the two organizations are regularly held in the afternoon and evening on different dates. However, the success of the meeting proved that an evening meeting results in a larger attendance of both fathers and mothers.

Christmas Greetings
Christmas cheer dominated the program, opened with a greeting from the P.-T. A. officers by the president, Mrs. Mary Reese. Greetings from the Fathers' auxiliary were brought by R. M. Ferguson, president, and C. R. Rettberg, secretary. Mr. Ferguson issued an earnest invitation to the fathers to continue their efforts "to make Broadway school the model school in Southern California."

Mr. Rettberg outlined the aims of the fathers' organization and told of what they had already done in adding to the school equipment.

Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan and her corps of teachers had arranged a delightful Christmas program, presented by the children in all the grades.

"Kinder" Band
There were selections by the school orchestra; clever pieces by the "Kinder Band," an orchestra of kindergarten children, who produced unusual harmony on unusual instruments, led by one of their own number; songs, "Jingle Bells," "Santa Land," "Christmas Calendar," by the first grade; a playlet, "Christmas Toys," by the second and third grades; songs, "Christmas Candles," and "Away in the Manger," by the third grade; songs, "Somebody's Coming," and "That Christmas Night," by the fourth grade; songs, "Christmas Story" and "Glory in the Highest," by the fourth grade; songs, "Three Kings" and "All Through the Night," by Mrs. Park's room; song, "Nazareth," by fifth and sixth grades; song by sixth grade boys, "Holy Night"; song by sixth grade girls, "Birthday of the King."

The next meeting of the Fathers' auxiliary will be the second Thursday in January.

The P.-T. A. met yesterday morning for an executive board session and made plans for Christmas activities.

Were it not for cowards, brazen acts could not be perpetrated.

COLLEGES ENTER RIFLE CONTESTS

League Now Being Formed of Teams Among Eastern Universities

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Syracuse will enter its rifle team in the Eastern Collegiate league now being formed, Nelson Hanson, manager, announced recently. The league's membership includes the leading universities of the east. Manager Hanson has scheduled in addition six dual matches with teams as far distant as the Pacific coast, and is negotiating for three more.

Besides Syracuse the Eastern Collegiate league is to include Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Cornell, Columbia, Dartmouth, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Norwich, Pennsylvania and Penn State. It is to be sponsored by the National Rifle association, all shooting to be done between February 11 and March 14, and targets passed upon by the association. The winning team each year will be given a handsome trophy.

Syracuse, one of the charter members, has made a great record on the rifle range in recent years. Material is abundant and high in quality this year.

Manager Hanson also announced the schedule for dual telegraphic meets. The teams he has booked are the finest in the country and include: University of Washington, December 15; City College of New York, December 19; University of Maine, February 2; Drexel Institute, February 9; Michigan Aggies, March 25; University of California, March 29. Teams with which Manager Hanson is dickering are Johns Hopkins, University of Vermont and Rutgers.

Equip New Range
Hanson has finally completed arrangements for a new range in the college of agriculture. This is now being fully equipped. The new range will be ready for use shortly, it is expected, when practice will start.

Charles T. Love, last year's captain, will do the coaching.

Some fine rifle men are awaiting the opening of the season. Besides most of last year's team Coach Love will have Rademaker and Frost, the two R. O. T. C. sharpshooters who were selected to shoot in the national military championships at Camp Perry, O., in September.

SHOOTS OWN MOTHER

Midget Co-Ed Plans Career in Dramatics

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 14.—Belief that her diminutive stature gives her a decided advantage over other folks is voiced by Miss Virginia Moore, freshman, the smallest student at Ohio State university.

Miss Moore, who is 18, weighs 80 pounds and is 4 feet 4 inches tall, has announced her intention—after several years of preliminary study—of entering a dramatic school. She hopes, eventually, to play juvenile parts, pointing out that this would be impossible if she were of normal stature.

Passion Players Not to Tour in America

VIENNA, Dec. 14.—Rumors that the famous Oberammergau passion play performers have decided to undertake a starring tour in the United States were denied by Josef Lang, impersonator of Christ in the play, in an interview at Oberammergau.

Lang stated that twelve villagers, including himself, intend to leave for America about the end of the year for a three months' stay there. They are not going as players, however, he said, but simply as artisans, such as wood painters, carvers and potters. He himself will exhibit his products as a potter in New York. The journey, he maintains, is a consequence of their present unfavorable economic condition.

Moonshine Still for School Boys Raided

MODESTO, Dec. 14.—Following reports that high school boys were purchasing wine in the neighborhood of Oakdale, Deputy Sheriff Lockridge of this city and Marshal Wood of Oakdale accompanied by two high school lads, raided the ranch of Jack Sambucello and seized seventeen hundred gallons of wine.

Sambucello will be arraigned on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor.

Credit of $3,525,000 Will Remain to Glendale When Sewer Bonds Are Passed

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Of The Evening News Staff.

Every angle of the intensive sewer campaign to assure a victory at the polls on January 8 was thoroughly established at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the campaign committee of the Chamber of Commerce, presided over by W. E. Hewitt, chairman.

The meeting was held at 1:30 o'clock, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Citizens' building, 150 South Brand boulevard, and was attended by fourteen committee members, including Mayor Spencer Robinson, Councilman Sam Davis, Chester A. Smith and C. S. Timanus, the latter two representatives of the Burns & McDonnell engineering firm, who have just completed the preliminary survey for the proposed $1,600,000 sewer.

Bonding Capacity
It was brought out by A. L. Baird, chairman of the finance committee, that Glendale's present bonding capacity is $4,125,000, and that, after allowing for the issue of $1,600,000 in sewer bonds, there would remain a credit of $2,525,000 available for future possible bond issues, an amount ample to care for any emergency.

It was decided that the mass meeting of next Tuesday night, December 18, for the discussion of the sewer project, will be held in the auditorium of the old Glendale Union High school, on East Harvard street, with talks by Mayor Robinson, Councilman Davis, Mr. Baird, Mr. Smith and a representative of the Glendale Realty board, in the order named.

City Into Districts

It was also decided to divide the city into fifteen districts and appoint the special sewer committee of the Glendale Realty board as a committee under the Chamber of Commerce sewer campaign.

committee as well, to appoint captains and canvass the entire city from north to south and east to west, in a determined effort to reach every voter on the absolute necessity of voting the sewer bonds.

Mass meetings will also be held at various points in the city, to be called "community meetings," so as not to confuse them with the big mass meeting of December 18, it was decided, and the following speakers were approved to address any such meetings: Councilmen Sam Davis and W. A. Horn, Charles B. Guthrie, C. W. Ingledue, Alexander Mitchell, Mattison B. Jones, Chalmers D. Day, Peter Hanson and Chester A. Smith.

Lyman Clark in Charge
These speakers and the plans for such speaking programs will be in charge of Lyman P. Clark, chairman of the sewer publicity committee, it was decided.

A sum of $1000 was voted to finance the cost of advertising and presenting the campaign through issuance of pamphlets, stickers, buttons, together with expenses of clerical and similar items.

The following were present at the meeting: Mayor Spencer Robinson, Councilmen Sam Davis, Asa Hall and W. A. Horn, W. E. Hewitt, Lyman P. Clark, Charles B. Guthrie, C. W. Ingledue, Alexander Mitchell, J. L. Baird, V. B. Stone, P. G. Baker, Chester A. Smith and C. S. Timanus.

AUTUMN TRADING SHOWS INCREASE

Records for October Point to Greater Activity in Business Volume

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—Signs of active autumn trade which were wanting in August and September appeared in nearly all sections of the Twelfth Federal Reserve District during October, and the record for that month shows a greater than seasonal increase in the total volume of business transacted. It was announced by John Perrin, chairman of the Board and Federal Reserve Agent, in his monthly report.

Continuing, Perrin said: "Eliminating seasonal variations, debits to individual accounts at banks in twenty-one reporting clearing house centers were 19.2 per cent greater during October, 1923, than during October, 1922, and 3.9 per cent greater than during September, 1923. The latter gain marked the end of a monthly decline in these corrected figures which, by September, had carried them to levels 14.2 per cent below the peak of June, 1923."

Gain in Permits
"Prospective building operations assumed record proportions during October when the number of building permits issued in twenty cities located in all sections of the district was 13.3 per cent greater than in the previous record month of March 1923, and the value of building authorized was but one per cent less than the recent peak of August, 1923."

"Bank credit for financing this increasing business activity as well as for harvesting and marketing the crops of the district has continued abundant and relatively cheap. Total loans of sixty-five reporting member banks at $999,000,000 on November 7 were 44.5 per cent below the autumn peak of $1,800,000,000 reached on September 19. Total deposits of these banks declined approximately $12,000,000 during October, a movement contrary to the general trend of recent months, which has been characterized by increasing deposits, narrowly fluctuating loans, declining investments and reduced demands upon the Federal Reserve bank."

Discounts Decline
"Total discounts of the Federal Reserve bank declined from $72,000,000 on October 18 to $57,000,000 on November 14, the latter figure being the lowest reached since April, 1923, and 38.3 per cent below the peak figure of the crop moving season reached on September 5, last."

"Interest rates tended slightly downward during the latter part of October and the first weeks of November."

"No abatement of productive activity in the principal industries of the district appeared during October, and a less than seasonal amount of unemployment was reported."

"Accompanying the continued excess of production over consumption of copper, market prices for that metal declined during late October and early November to low levels (12½¢ per pound) for the year, but have since (November 19) recovered 13½¢ per pound. Wages of skilled and unskilled miners at the principal copper camps of Arizona and Utah were reduced fifty cents a day on November 1. Petroleum production in California apparently reached a peak in September, following a steady rise of two years duration, and average daily production during October was 7.7 per cent less than during the previous month."

A crust of bread means more to a beggar than a banquet to the rich.

TOYS COST MORE IN MODERN DAYS

Present Day Youth Requires Auto With Spare Tire, Electric Lights

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—The shop windows of Chicago, crammed with toys in preparation for Christmas, demonstrate convincingly that had Little Boy Blue lived today he would have turned up his small nose at the Little Toy Dog and the Little Tin Soldier, with their dust and rust.

The toy makers—and who, better than they, know what youngsters want?—are of the opinion that the Little Boy Blues and their sisters of the present desire a certain refinement and elaboration in their playthings. Simplicity has ceased to be their motif.

They make no more efforts to interest the young in little tin millers who climb poles with sacks of flour atop their heads, or in cast-iron fire engines whose prancing steeds are doomed to a life of paralysis while at full gallop. The children, it seems, recognize these are stupid, silly and unworthy of a burgeoning intelligence.

The excited youngster who, immediately after breakfast on December 25, used to trundle out his new, shining red "racer" automobile with its simple ratchet crank and lights only painted on, and pedal it up and down in great glee usually matured into a man who shaved himself and was happy in three rooms, kitchen and bath.

"Real" Automobiles
But this Christmas his son will climb into a toy motor car so ponderous that he can move it only with difficulty. It is hung from fender to fender with accessories.

There are nickel-plated drum-head lamps with real electric bulbs inside and a battery with a switch beneath the steering gear. There is a spare wheel and tire fastened to the rear and, in the case of more costly types, several spare wheels and tires.

The wind-break is not make-believe glass, either. Its edges are beveled, and it can be adjusted like those of big motor cars. The electric horn has a terrifying screech that doubtless will frighten pedestrians off sidewalks and into streets where the big automobiles may run them down conveniently.

The rubber tires are thick things, not the skinny tubes that you find on our automobiles. Besides, they are corded into elaborate treads. The racer has chains, also, to prevent rainy day skidding. Quite an automobile.

Cost No Object
Other toys are correspondingly elaborate. One Chicago store is displaying an electrically operated village that appears to have been designed by an Edison or a Steinmetz. Its inhabitants move about and perform all their duties by electricity.

Most interesting is a bake shop, where one red-haired baker, with a sly grin, is mixing dough with flour-covered arms. Up and down he churns it. An electric boy whose breath of life comes out of the wall switch darts kringles with powdered sugar, another baker with a Scaramouche nose pushes loaves into the oven with a long, wooden paddle, and a woman stacks crullers and jelly-rolls in a window.

Just from a look about the shops it appears that the Little Tin Soldier never can expect to come back unless he gets a manicure, a Sam Browne belt, a new uniform, a slave and a shine, nor can the Little Toy Dog expect to get anywhere if he does not get his mane clipped and prove that he is related directly to Strongheart.

THE GLENDALE
Jackie Coogan in "Long Live the King" shows at the Glendale Theatre today for the last time. A tremendous picture, lavishly produced, the story by Mary Roberts Reinhardt, direction by Victor Schertzinger, released by Metro, represents a cost of $600,000 and has been hailed with delight all over the country as marking the beginning of a new and better era in motion pictures.

Manager William A. Howe has been very proud to have this great film show at the Glendale Theatre, he states, and appreciates the wonderful support the people have given it. Such receptions accorded a photoplay prove conclusively that it is worth while to spend the colossal fortunes required to achieve results like this.

THE GATEWAY
"The Bad Man," with Holbrook Blinn in the lead, concludes today its showing at the Gateway Theatre, where it has brought down the house with laughter over the ludicrous antics of Blinn in the role of Pancho Lopez, who tries so hard to be bad he is funny.

This is the great play that swept New York off its feet and is even more of a success on the screen. Supporting the star is a cast including Jack Mulhall, Enid Bennett, Harry Myers and Walter McGrath.

"Robin Hood of the Desert" might well be the title of this film. Listen to Pancho's line of talk: "Look-a-me square in-a ze eye. Do you like-a ze brave man, ze big-a lovaire? Den looke-me! I'm heem!" It is a First National Picture, directed by Edwin Carewe.

LA CRESCENTA CLUBWOMEN HEAR NOTED EDUCATOR

Dean of N. Y. University Tells His First Impressions Of California

The Women's club of La Crescenta enjoyed a most delightful talk on "First Impressions," delivered by Dean Boughton of New York University.

Mrs. Mary B. Darrow, as chairman of the program committee, introduced the dean, who immediately put the ladies at their ease by saying, "I think any club or organization that can discuss business for an hour and a half and then want to listen to a speaker, is quite some organization, and certainly holds the record."

Mr. Boughton further said that, as he was a tenderfoot out here, his idea was not to talk, but to listen, so what was his surprise when resting in the lounge at Los Angeles university club, he heard one clubwoman say to another, "Then I made up my mind to kill him." Remarkable, was it not? But considered by the dean to be merely a part of the west so often written about and, being a good listener, Dean Boughton went on to say, he did not get up to notify an officer of the law, but went on reading, when, to his surprise, the conversation was resumed by this remark, "Yes, I really wanted to kill the two of them, but thought the public wouldn't stand for two murders, so I just killed the one."

By this time the learned dean's conservative eastern mind was, no doubt, telling him it was time to be somewhere else, when it turned out the murderer was a movie director.

First impressions do mean so much. The unbounded enthusiasm of southern Californians is amazing to those of the effete east, our optimistic outlook on life, of the future of our state and home towns is unknown elsewhere in the world. Nowhere is the community spirit of confidence, of superlative spirit of well-being, so evident as in this vicinity; that is, if we take Dean Boughton's word for it, and we do.

The Last Struggle
A remark came to the speaker's ears which he thinks remarkable, to wit: Los Angeles is without doubt the stronghold of the last civilization. And why? Because we have superlative advantages such as are nowhere else in the world. We felt pretty chesty over this, as our speaker has not only made first impressions here, but abroad as well.

Then (and this is not so conducive to civic pride) our visitor said he read in a leading daily the morning morning, in starting, starting headlines, that Los Angeles heads the list for auto accidents, as there is no place in the U. S. A. that can come up to that city.

Shocking, isn't it, when you think of the blot on our fair community's escutcheon? The crisis, the inevitable downfall, coming to this country if we cannot stabilize the times, received Mr. Boughton's attention, and in this matter literature, the taste for good literature, must take its place.

No one, stated the speaker, can say they have seen the United States until they have also seen some other country, not necessarily England, but France, Italy, Germany, Russia or any of the European countries, then can come the comparison. Mr. Boughton, who was in England a year ago, said he visited the English town of Boston, from which our American Boston received its name. The quaint old town still has the old Stump church, where Joe Colton preached his last service, before embarking on his perilous voyage to the new land of freedom. The hall where Brewster was tried still stands and, in comparing the two towns, Mr. Boughton said traces of the old Boston are very clear in the American town.

Divorce Figures
The number of divorce proceedings mentioned in the daily papers as compared with the number of marriages is tragic, and surely shows half of the people marrying do not do it for love. The irresponsibility of the present day parents was also commented on by the speaker from his first impression on reading the daily papers.

As Dean Boughton said, five or ten years ago no university president would dare have spoken of these things in his inaugural speeches, but this was done here, in superlative Los Angeles.

The threat these records hold for the stability of the country's welfare is, in Mr. Boughton's mind, no idle one, but one which, if carried out, will smash civilization.

The church too, must make its appeal to the coming generations as literature, art and religion do more to keep revolution away from a country than any other thing and the very forces seeking to undermine our present day civilization attack these things first, in an underhanded way, causing disintegration of the standards of government.

Civilization's Aid
Literature, goes on Mr. Boughton, is civilization's best aid against these forces—but no literary effort which has not lived through at least three generations and is still read—deserves to come under that heading, while some of the naughty, untrue, or foolish books will not appeal to the public for long—far more does truth endure and not the false.

In summing up, his remarks Dean Boughton said a stupid book was bad, as one did not attempt to remember what he had read, and an erroneous book also had a very short life with the public and the average person will only

SEVERE LAWS OF ANCIENTS SHOWN

Human Life Mere Bagatelle When Ethical Questions Were Involved

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 14.—How precious human life has grown with the dawn of civilization is shown by a perusal of the laws of Hammurabi, sixth king of the first dynasty of Babylon.

In the state law library here is a translation by Francis Harper, professor of Semitic languages at Chicago university in 1904, of Hammurabi's code, taken from a monument of black diorite found on the Acropolis of Susa in 1902 by a French expedition. It is from this code, science believes, that the laws of Moses were drafted. The date is placed at 2250 B. C. Hammurabi showed a grim and often just humor. Some of his statutes might well be adopted now. He made useless all alibis by physicians that the operation was successful, but the patient failed to recover from the shock, for Hammurabi decreed that the physician's fingers should be cut off in case of failure to save the patient.

"Democratic Soul"
That Hammurabi was a democratic soul was shown by his law freeing a tenant farmer from interest on a debt if his crop failed because of storms or other unpreventable conditions. However, the renter had to hustle, for the price of shittleness was payment to the landlord of an amount of grain estimated from neighboring fields. Also, the renter was forced to till all his land, for if he did not the barren patches were counted in his half of the "split" with the landlord.

Hammurabi in a very efficient way cut to the heart of the stolen property problem. If a man charged that another had his property and could not prove it by competent witnesses, the plaintiff never again had to bother his head over such details, for he lost it.

If the original owner could prove ownership and the buyer could not prove it, the thief, whom he had bought, that thief also had a brief run of hard luck. But if the buyer failed to produce the thief he was called a liar and soon thereafter was in communion with his ancestors.

The greatest problem of modern times, divorce, was no problem at all to Hammurabi. He was the first exponent of trial marriages. If a man cared not for his wife, he merely had to give her "dot," or marriage settlement, to her father, together with other gifts, and he again was a bachelor. If a wife became indiscreet, her husband could take another wife without further ceremony, and the offender was forced by law to slave in his home as maid servant to the new wife.

Assault Trivial
Assault and battery were charges comparatively easy to escape in those days, if a man could remember the formula. All he had to do was to say, "I struck him without intent," and his total liability was the doctor's bill. If the victim happened to succumb, and the assailant had uttered the magic words, it was considered that one "man" of silver patched up the affair nicely.

Sons and daughters were cruelly repressed. They were not allowed to strike father. If the son did, by royal edict he lost his fingers, like the unsuccessful physician.

Sound construction of buildings was assured by the statute which exacted the life of the contractor if a building collapsed and caused the death of a tenant. Cutting the costs by flimsy construction was the last thing a contractor considered.

Proper conduct of the courts of law was made certain by a chapter which placed death as the penalty for perjury or filing a wrongful charge. Even the judge had to walk a chalk line in his decisions. If he decided a case and then reversed himself, twelve times the amount of the fine was the price he had to pay. Hammurabi's judges made a point of getting their decisions right in the first place.

remember that which is good and true and can last for the coming generation. The present according to Mr. Boughton stands on the shoulders of the past, and the penalty one must pay to read good literature, if penalty it can be called, is to love all good literature.

As a fitting climax to his most interesting talk Mr. Boughton read a letter, received by him while in Scotland, in Ayshire, the home of the immortal Bobbie Burns. This letter written by an old farmer residing ten miles from a railroad in New England, had no capitals, no punctuation, a third of the words misspelled, but—and this is the vital point—the writer envied the Dean his opportunity to visit the places where his favorites had once walked. And who were his favorites? Keats, Shelley, Robert Burns, Scott and Shakespeare. He wrote of his desire to see and visit the castle where Rizzio's blood is still to be seen on the stairs, the castle of Edinburgh and the other places found in history and romance.

Consider By-Laws
The business meeting of the club, was given over mainly to the reading of the revised by-laws, by the committee on that work. Mrs. C. Reynolds read the original by-laws and Mrs. Turk the revised ones. The colors of the club as were suggested by Mrs. Mark Collins, blue and gold were unanimously accepted, symbolic of California's blue skies and our own glorious golden sunshine and more golden poppies.

A letter of resignation from Mrs. Fred Cernisky was read and accepted with regret, as Mrs. Cernisky was one of the early members of the club and a gen-

Sweetbread Used For Insulin Manufacture

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The succulent sweetbread is the latest martyr to science.

Owing to the great demand for sweetbreads in the manufacture of insulin, the new cure for diabetes, this delicacy has all but disappeared from the menu of London's leading hotels. The action of the French government in prohibiting exportation of sweetbreads has entirely removed "Ris de Veau a la Financiere" from the gustatory programme of English epicures.

It is still possible to obtain English sweetbreads now and then, but they are scarce and expensive.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—No longer is the "southpaw" housewife to be handicapped in her work because kitchen utensils are made solely for the righthanded woman.

British manufacturers have begun to make pots and pans designed for the convenience of the left-handed operator. They are offering their customers their choice of either right-handed or left-handed pans and are also making a double-lipped saucepan for the use of either the right-handed or left-handed woman.

The popularity of these utensils the manufacturers declare, is proof enough that there are more left-handed housewives, cooks and kitchen maids in England than anyone has imagined.

DECLARES NEUTRALITY

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 14.—Following a conference with Mexican emissaries purporting to represent the governor of Sonora and the president of Mexico, Governor Hunt issued a proclamation declaring neutrality in Mexican affairs calling upon citizens to refrain from shipment of arms and ammunition into Mexico and urging on all peace officers strict enforcement of the alien laws.

Glendalians Elected As Officers of Club

Last week 700 former residents of Montana met in the Philharmonic Auditorium building in Los Angeles and launched an organization to be known as the Montana club. At a meeting of the general committee, held Wednesday night, at the Casa Felipe, 2514 West Seventh street, Los Angeles, officers were selected and committees appointed. Glendale was honored by having two of its prominent citizens selected for high positions. J. M. Rhoades, former secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, was elected as a vice-president, and John A. Coleman, attorney at law, of 415 North Kenwood street, was elected vice-president and chairman of the executive committee.

There are approximately 10,000 former Montanans in Los Angeles county, and approximately 2000 have enrolled or pledged their membership in the Montana club to date. The organization will maintain headquarters and club-rooms in the Los Angeles downtown district. The other officers are J. Ross Clark, honorary president; Dr. Thomas B. Moore, president; E. B. Weirick, treasurer, and W. M. Egan, secretary-manager.

European Press Distorts And Magnifies News From America, Declares Kirk

That happenings in America are greatly exaggerated by the foreign press is told in today's letter from W. B. Kirk, who wrote to his Glendale friends from Meran, Italy, November 16.

W. B. KIRK

He states that the recent slight earthquake shock in Imperial valley is reported in the foreign newspapers as the worst in the history of that section. Mr. Kirk writes:

"We are still in 'The Tyrol.' We had heard from several people that this was a great resort and a fine place for both health and pleasure, so we decided to stop here on our way to Venice and see what it looked like. Consequently, when we left Innsbruck on Monday afternoon we bought our tickets to Meran."

"I have always had a very hazy idea of just where the Tyrol (or Tyrol) lies, and I suppose there are others of you just as ignorant. Before the war it was all, or nearly all in Austria, constituting the extreme western province of that country, bounded on the west by Switzerland, on the north by Bavaria, on the east by the Province of Salzburg, and on the south by Italy."

Common Joys

The spirit of Rotary was again manifest, and in no small degree, when the entire membership of the Glendale Rotary club at its noon luncheon in the Egyptian Village yesterday assumed the role of Santa Claus, individually, and as a consequence at least seventeen disabled children of Glendale will receive bountiful gifts on Christmas.

This action came in response to an announcement last week from President George B. Karr, that names of children would be drawn by the members at the next meeting. As a result, Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, (Continued on page 3)

Failure to Show Certificate

For Stiff Sentence

A warning to motorists regarding the carrying of registration certificates was sounded this morning in a statement issued by Judge F. H. Lowe of the police court.

"As many persons are probably not familiar with the law in this respect," said Judge Lowe, "I consider the time is opportune to call their attention to the matter when Chief of Police J. D. Fraser is giving his attention to the strict enforcement of the new parking regulations."

Old Scrap Books Recall Memories of Other Days In City's Early History

BY "OLD TIMER"
Of The Evening News Staff.

Cheap Notoriety! The writer did not coin the phrase. It was thrust into the face of the friendly reporter who, covering new territory and inquiring in an ingratiating manner as possible for any news, social or otherwise, was met with "I do not care for such cheap notoriety."

The reporter was surprised, not affronted, as it could not have been personal. Not only surprised but rather perplexed, and pondered over it quite a little until last week the vexed problem was solved and such an attitude relegated to its proper place.

Largely the garrulous and wandering reminiscences of Old Timer were matters of memory assisted by appeals to the recollections of contemporaries with an occasional lapse into "It was told to me" and so, greatly to the pleasure of (Continued on Page 3)

Prospects for California in 1924 Predict Favorable Trade Conditions

By GIL A. COWAN
Of The Evening News Staff.

With predictions of national prosperity published during the week, it is interesting to note conditions in the state of California as they have a relative bearing on business during 1924 in Glendale. The writer has visited the Imperial Valley, San Diego, and now touring the San Joaquin valley. Be it said that the sun is smiling on California.

High prices of cotton in the Imperial are going to radiate in good business and more cotton ranching, which means that this vicinity will be favored by industry. (Continued on Page 6)

TODAY—French Breakfasts Win Out; May Eat Them in Subways.

By ALICE LANGELEIR

PARIS, Dec. 14.—To breakfast or not to breakfast—that was the question laid before the French Academy of Medicine. After having accepted the English week-end, which means a half-holiday on Saturday, the French are looking into the merits of a breakfast of bacon and eggs. In Paris to breakfast means to drink. A cup of cafe au lait or chocolate (rarely tea), with a "croissant," or warm roll, spells breakfast to the average French family. This means of course, that the noon luncheon is a heavy one. Bunks and offices close up for two hours so their clerks can have plenty of time to dine with leisure. This in turn means a general overcrowding of all ways of transportation and a great loss of time. But changes are not made in a day in the land of France. After much deliberation the French Academy, concluding that the English noon meal is a hurried affair and bad for the digestion, has decided to stick to the old regime. And thus visitors to Paris with big breakfast appetites will have to look further than the average corner cafe or small hotel dining-room for what they want.

On the other hand, there is some talk of the possibility of lunching in the "Metro." G. du la Fouchardiere, writing in "L'Oeuvre," does not see why food cannot be eaten in the subway as well as in the railway trains. "This habit, once acquired," continues Fouchardiere, "will render the greatest service to the Parisian population through the economy of time. The man in a hurry has only to carry his parcel of food in the subway with him and eat when he likes." There is also some talk of drinking stations being installed at the different stops which will not come amiss if the new lunching plans work out.

Women can be judges in Czechoslovakia. A conference of the chief judges of the Czechoslovakian courts has just decided to allow women to exercise the function of judges. One has already been appointed a deputy judge.

It pays to be a manicurist in Paris. Since the war men, as well as women, have become very careful of their hands and nails. A few years ago it was scarcely necessary to have a manicurist in a barber shop. Now one finds four or five, each one averaging ten pairs of hands a day and on Saturday, "the big night," at least twenty-five. With the tips, each one earns about twenty-five or thirty francs a day.

The remains of a prehistoric bison have been found in the course of dredging operations in the River Saone, near Chalons-sur-Saone. The head is of enormous size and still contains ten teeth in very good condition.

No more beards on the policemen in Constantinople. Word comes that the new director, who is a reformer, has issued orders that his agents must shave at least once a week, and must wear their hats straight. In the future all police must pass in review before going to their service and in the streets take on a serious air which commands respect and authority. The Orient is setting the fashion for many things these days.

"This pastry shop is not the one that sold the poison cakes!" So reads the sign in several sweet shops which happen to be near the one which caused several cases of severe poisoning and the death of one person last week. It so happens that several cake bakers are in the same block, and they are afraid their trade will slacken.

A new Italian doll bids fair to oust the well-known Parisian poupée and estrange the affections of children and grown-ups from the dainty waxen creature in fancy froils.

Morphine, cocaine, nicotine and caffeine are merely the active principles of the poppy plant, the cocoa leaf, the tobacco plant, the coffee bean and the tea leaf. Some of them stimulate, some intoxicate, all debilitate.

Watch your sneeze, it spreads disease, and so does careless spitting.

On the Spur of the Moment

By ROY K. MOULTON

SONNET OF SENSE
A mushy line for which we used to fall —
Yes, and a lot of boobs fall for it yet — Expressed a lot of sorrow and regret

About "the Dear, Dead Days Beyond Recall."
A lot of people sit around and bawl

About the Lovely Past—and quite forget
All its unloveliness. And you can bet

That next year, this year will seem best of all.

The old times were not good; the future times
Will not be better. What you're doing now, Lovemaking, keeping house, or writing rhymes,
Is all that counts, however you sign and vow.

And if it isn't worth three battered dimes,
It's passing. What's the difference anyhow?
—Ted Robinson.

Baron O'Coyle excerpts this paragraph:
"A national laundry statistician," declares the president of the clothing men, "tells us that more than 50 per cent of the men's underwear received by laundries is worn out or full of holes and in need of repair."

That's fair enough (says our correspondent). Since 50 per cent of the underwear by laundries is in the same condition, it looks like an even break. But maybe "received" in the paragraph quoted is a misprint for "returned."

EXPENSIVE GRUB
Those attending the Women's Foreign Missionary Society Picnic are asked to bring dishes and silver sandwiches and one other article of food.—Youngstown Tribune.

"Do you melt 'em first?" asks the unsigned correspondent who has been sending all these clippings. No—serve 'em cold, bite hard, and save yourself a session with the dentist.

LONG-DISTANCE SERVICE
A busy interviewer quotes Mme. Pavlova thus: "They sent me to London to do Red Cross work in Southern Italy." And Herb Iverson wonders whether the Red Cross couldn't send him to Atlantic City where he would enjoy a long wished for lion hunt in Central Africa.

THE DEGENERACY OF THE PUNCHER
This summer (says Pat) I saw a sight the description of which will doubtless sadden your romantic heart. In the central part of Arizona, on a dusty road, I met up with a cowboy. He might have stepped out of a movie film—chaps, spurs, mud-colored ponies and all. But — my bosom aches when I repeat it—he carried a white embroidered parasol.

"Might have stepped out of a movie," says you, Pat? He did. This was evidently a screen hero. I met up with a cowboy. He might have stepped out of a movie film—chaps, spurs, mud-colored ponies and all. But — my bosom aches when I repeat it—he carried a white embroidered parasol.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SAMMIE'S STOCKING
Once upon a time, when Uncle Wiggily was sitting alone in the hollow stump bungalow, there sounded a knock at the door.

"My goodness!" thought the bunny gentleman, and his pink nose began to twinkle very fast. "I hope that isn't the Fuzzy Fox or the Woozle Wolf."

Before he opened the door Uncle Wiggily looked from a side window, and the rabbit gentleman was much happier when he saw, standing on the steps, Sammie Littletail, the boy rabbit.

"Oh, it's all right to let Sammie in," laughed Mr. Longears, so he opened the door.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily!" greeted Sammie, with a polite little bow of his ragged cap, for Sammie wore an old cap to play in.

"Hello, Sammie," answered the bunny gentleman. "Did your mother send you to borrow a thimble full of molasses or a quart of eggs?"

"Neither one!" laughed Sammie. "But I came to borrow something for myself. Could I take one of Nurse Jane's old stockings, Uncle Wiggily?" asked the rabbit boy.

"One of Nurse Jane's stockings?" repeated the bunny. "Why Halloween's long past, Sammie. You don't want to fill a stocking with flour now, do you, and bang somebody with it?"

"Oh, no, I don't want a stocking for Halloween," said Sammie. "I know that is over long ago. But I'd like one of Nurse Jane's longest stockings, and one with no holes in, if you please."

"This seems very strange to me," said Uncle Wiggily. But as he liked to see the boy animals do things for themselves, without pestering them too much with questions, the rabbit gentleman thought he would let Sammie have what he wanted.

"As it happens," said Uncle Wiggily, "Nurse Jane has laid aside some stockings that she no longer wants. They have had holes in them, but they are nicely darned, Sammie."

"Oh, that won't hurt—as long as they have no holes in for things to fall through!" said the rabbit boy eagerly.

"Well, I'll get you a pair of Nurse Jane's old stockings, then," promised the bunny gentleman. "You will have to take two for it would be a pity to spoil a pair. One stocking is not of much use in this world, Sammie, and these old ones Nurse Jane intended to give to some poor animal lady. But you may have one pair."

"I only need one stocking," said Sammie, but I can give the other to Nurse Susie. Thank you, Uncle Wiggily."

Now when the bunny gentleman had given Sammie the stockings and the boy rabbit had hopped away with them, Mr. Longears twinkled his pink nose and said: "I think it will do no harm for me to slip out, follow Sammie and see what he is going to do with those stockings. Perhaps he is going to play some trick. It will be all right if he does no harm. I will follow so that I may see."

Uncle Wiggily hopped softly after the rabbit chap, and saw Sammie stuff one stocking into his pocket.

"That must be the one he is going to give his sister Susie," thought Uncle Wiggily.

Then, hiding behind a tree, Uncle Wiggily saw Sammie sit down on a log and hold the other of Nurse Jane's stockings up in the air.

"Yes, it is a fine large one, and there are no holes in it," said the rabbit boy, talking out loud. Uncle Wiggily heard him. "The stocking is hardly long enough, though," went on Sammie. "But I know how to make it stretch longer."

Then and there, Sammie began filling Nurse Jane's stocking with stones. Stone after stone the rabbit boy put in the stocking.

"Well, that is the strangest thing I ever saw!" thought Uncle Wiggily, as he watched. "Why is Sammie stretching the stocking longer by filling it with stones?" For now the rabbit boy was holding the weighted stocking up in the air.

"I say, Sammie, what are you doing?" suddenly asked Uncle Wiggily, stepping out from behind the tree.

"Oh!" murmured Sammie, and he blushed red behind his ears. "Well, you see, Uncle Wiggily, I want a very big, long stocking to hang up for Christmas. I expect to get a lot of presents this year. None of my stockings were large enough, so I thought I'd get one of Nurse Jane's and make it longer by stretching it. I guess it's long enough now."

"Yes, and I guess Uncle Wiggily's ears are long enough to nibble!" howled the Bob Cat as he jumped out of the bushes.

"You can't nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears while I'm here!" cried Sammie. And with that the rabbit boy brought the stocking filled with stones hanging down on the Bob Cat's soft and tender nose.

"Oh, wow! I guess I made a mistake. I don't want to nibble any ears today!" howled the bad chap, and away he ran.

"Well, Sammie, I guess it's a good thing you wanted a big stocking for Christmas!" laughed the bunny gentleman, as he hopped back to his bungalow. "I hope you get it filled."

"I hope so, too," said Sammie. And if the clock doesn't forget to wash its face on the pen wiper when it plays tag with the hair brush, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the weasel.

10 Years Ago Today
From Evening News Files

The new lights in North Glendale shone out for the first time last night. Residents of that section say that as a result of this new brilliancy the inhabitants of poultry yards were mistaken about the time of day and much crowing was heard about 10 o'clock.

Many cities are adopting the plan of having a public Christmas tree. Why should not Glendale join the procession?

What next? The latest addition to Glendale's field of sports is the Rugby football team recently organized by Hugh Blue and his brother, Gerald Blue, of Arden avenue.

Dinner Stories
A certain gentleman of the pronounced brunette complexion in one of our leading southern communities, visited a lawyer and inquired into the procedure of getting a divorce, says the Cornell Widow. The lawyer expressed considerable surprise at the request and told the gentleman of color that he thought that his home was a happy one.

The caller begrudgingly admitted that such was the state, but still insisted that he wanted to be separated from his mate. The lawyer then began to speak of the cost of divorce, and the Ethiopian asked the exact price. The lawyer said, "One would cost you all of fifty dollars."

"They does?"

"Then you jes' nevah mind, they ain't that much difference between us."

LEADERS IN FEAR OF PARTY SPLIT

Administration Program May Be in Danger Result of Lack of Harmony

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Threats of a Republican split in Congress, that ultimately would defeat the administration's entire legislative program, rumbled through the capitol today while majority leaders anxiously sought means of restoring party harmony.

The legislative session was anxious, Republican leaders admitted, because of the bitterness among Progressive insurgents in the Senate, who bolted the party to vote for a Democrat in the election of a chairman for the Senate interstate commerce committee. This little group of Senate insurgents—seven in number—had forced a two-day vacation, were threatening to permanently bolt the party, had tied all legislation and are arousing endless concern among administration leaders.

Causes Deadlock
Their immediate clash with the regular Republicans has deadlocked for three days the election of the committee chairman, to which Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, president pro tem of the senate, aspired. The insurgents, however, opposed Cummins and while voting at first for Senator La Follette, Republican, of Wisconsin, their leader, later switched to Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina, a Democrat.

Smith failed of election by a single vote. House insurgents, led by Representative John Nelson, Republican, of Wisconsin, added further to the troubles of the Republican leadership. The Nelson group, which deadlocked the House in its election of a speaker last week, planned a new rebellion directed against the distribution of committee assignments.

The Senate revolt, however, caused administration leaders the most alarm. All offers of compromise have so far been rejected by the insurgents, who were reported to have opened negotiations with the Senate Democrats for a coalition to overthrow the Republican leadership. The Democrats were said to be "listening" to the offer.

Republican leaders meanwhile held a series of conferences to determine whether they would concede all Democrats to the Progressives or attempt to force against the insurgents to the finish.

The latter course, it was pointed out, would drive the insurgents into the Democratic camp, sweep the Republicans out of power and turn the Democrats into control of the Senate. Such a procedure, of course, would spell defeat for the administration's legislative program.

United Front
The Progressives maintained a united front, merely announcing that there were no indications of a change in their plans.

"We will fight the selection of Senator Cummins as chairman of the interstate commerce committee to the finish," said Senator Norris, acting leader of the group. "There is nothing to indicate a change in our plans. Some of the Progressives did vote for Senator Smith, Democrat, and they did so because they felt Smith was a better man for the post than Cummins and because they felt they could not elect Senator La Follette. Whatever we do, we will NOT accept Cummins."

Leaders of the two factions have until Monday to settle their differences, because an agreement was reached postponing further voting upon the chairmanship until then. Rumors were current this morning that the first ballot on Monday would result in the election of Smith, the Democratic candidate, through additional votes from the insurgent camp.

His election yesterday was prevented because Senators Howell and Norris, Republicans of Nebraska, continued to vote for La Follette.

A new offer of compromise, it was said, was being prepared by administration leaders. This was said to include the elimination of Cummins and the substitution of another Republican, acceptable to the insurgents as the candidate for the regulars. The names of Senators Watson of Indiana, McLean of Connecticut and Fernald of Maine were mentioned. This plan appeared to be the one ray of hope for a peaceful settlement.

Treasury Rule Halts Xmas Tree Imports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Santa Claus got a setback today when the treasury department issued an order which will cut down the shipment of Christmas trees from Canada to the United States.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Moss issued an order to the collector of customs at Detroit to refuse entry of Christmas trees where shipments were not accompanied by a certificate showing them to have been cut in Canada.

It was reported to the customs officials that many Christmas trees are being cut in New England, shipped to Canada and then reimported to the United States to avoid quarantine against interstate shipments.

W. J. BURNS ILL
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—William J. Burns, head of the department of justice bureau of investigation, and famous detective, is confined to his bed at a local hotel from a severe cold from which he has been suffering for several days. His physician stated his condition was improved today and that he would return to Washington as soon as he is able to travel again.

Scrap Book Recalls Early Glendale Days

or propriety of personal mention or social events.

Family's Annals
It is the annals of a pioneer family and in the little clippings from the papers published in Los Angeles, it tells how their lives touched the community life and, in so doing, it incidentally tells the story of community life and activities.

As loving hands preserved the clippings of a personal and social nature, they preserved a record of the development of the valley in the way of railroads, highways, public schools, library, club, public utilities of water, light and gas, which is of historical value.

Three of the members of this pioneer family, graduating from the Glendale Union High School, the notices of participation in the athletic and social events, the activities of a builder of highways and railroads, of the president of the first municipal library board, and of the vice presidency of the Tuesday afternoon club and in countless other ways render the matter of value although the clipping was preserved because of personal mention.

More Data Coming
A second scrap book is as yet an anticipated pleasure. A former Glendale resident, now living in Pasadena, seeing the writer's enthusiasm over scrap books, offered to loan a rare volume belonging to her grandfather, the last governor of California under Spanish rule. The owner of this treasure, Mrs. Arthur Payne of Pasadena formerly living on Eulalia street, Glendale, has also promised to relate to Old Timer the story of the naming of the streets in the southern section of the city, "Mira Loma," "Cerritos" and "El Bonito" or "La Bonita" as was first considered.

Another tale of scrap books was related the same day by a third member of the group who were talking of scrap books. A resident of Chicago, a relative, is keeping three scrap books and makes it a point to secure three copies of every paper in which the three members of her family are mentioned and the article in question is preserved for future reference or pleasure.

A few weeks ago Old Timer spoke of a lecture given in 1904, on "The Empress Josephine," by Mrs. Greenleaf, the club members dressing in costumes of that period.

Old Social Event
As it was before the writer's coming to Glendale it was with great pleasure that a full account of the affair was found in Mr. Goode's scrap book, clipped from a Los Angeles paper (The Examiner) and Old Timer learned that the hall had been most artistically decorated in costumes, similar and asparagus fern. This gave a very beautiful artistic setting for the elegant costumes, illustrating the empress style of the Josephine period. The costumes set off with pearls, diamonds, plumes, etc. were worn by six young ladies. Misses Culver and McIn tyre were gowned in pink; Misses Martin and Hackman in white; and Misses Goode and Byram in pink and blue.

"The French national hymn was rendered by Clarence Peck on the violin, accompanied by Mrs. D. W. Hunt. Mrs. Taylor, the president introduced the speaker. After the program refreshments of the period were served."

It is evident that Glendale was recognized in athletic circles for the same paper announces that Ray E. Goode of Glendale High school had been elected as president of the county High school athletic association and Webster Green was elected manager of the basketball association.

Rotary Members Will Help Santa for Kiddies

compiled a list of seventeen names from the pupils of Mrs. Flora H. Fitzpatrick, which names were then drawn by the Rotarians. The member drawing a name in turn selected a fellow-Rotarian to assist him in bringing cheer to the unfortunate children at Christmas time.

Free Movies
To add further to the pleasures of the little boys and girls who are incapacitated so that they can not attend school with other children, but must remain at home and have a teacher come to them, Manager Wm. A. Howe, of the Glendale Theatre offered to issue a yearly pass to Mrs. Fitzpatrick, which would entitle her and one pupil at a time, to attend this theater.

Principal George Moyle, of the High School, called attention of the club members to the formal opening of the high school auditorium, and the annual variety show, the first performance of which was held last night, and urged their attendance. The show will be repeated tonight.

President Karr read an invitation from the Los Angeles Rotary club, to the local club, for its members to attend the big entertainment in the Biltmore Hotel, January 5, when twenty-five clubs of Southern California will be honor guests.

Greetings from a Rotary club in New Zealand to the local club were read by President Karr.

Skunks Grow Sweeter, Eat Bees and Honey

LOS ANOS, Dec. 14.—Local men are nonplused over the ravages by skunks, which are robbing hives and eating bees and honey. Skunks also appear to be much more numerous than usual.

Owing to the continued warm and dry weather, the honey harvest has been unusually good and the bees are in good condition to maintain themselves throughout the winter without feeding, if the activities of the skunks can be summarily stopped.

CROWDS PUZZLED BY TALKING CAR

Big Six Studebaker Mystifies Motorists By Ability to Talk Sense

"The Talking Studebaker," the car whose coming has been shrouded in such mystery, made its appearance yesterday at the showrooms of the Packer Auto Company, 245 South Brand boulevard, local Studebaker distributors, and instead of the mystery being cleared up when the crowds of curious folks kept pouring into the place it was deepened with every passing moment.

Every claim made for "The Talking Studebaker" is made good. It actually talks, and although its voice, pouring out from under the hood, seems hoarse, every word that it says is wonderfully distinct. What tends still further to puzzle the people who inspect the car is that there is nothing but the engine under the hood. Everything about the car, a regular stock Big Six touring car, is wide open, and there isn't space around the car to conceal anyone, no matter how small, and even a federal prohibition sleuth, trained to nose out small and suspicious packages in the most unlikely regions of a car, could not find anyone hidden in the works.

Car Really Talks
The car answers questions, carries on intelligent conversations, sings a song at times, turns its lamps on and off, and generally possesses an uncanny ability that would have justified the belief in witchcraft, if we had not reached the stage in our development when it is regarded as bad form to believe in witches at any time of the year except Halloween.

Some of the people who see the car and hear it talk get so mystified that they get real mad over it, while others hang around for an hour at a time trying to get some insight as to just what gives the Big Six the power to act as it does.

Meantime, the car will stay here until Saturday night, costing the Packer Auto Company a handsome sum each day but bringing in a crowd of prospects that will, it is predicted, result in a big boost in Studebaker sales in the Glendale territory.

TARIFF CHOKING EXPORTS, CLAIM

American Owner of English Department Store Raps Law's Provision

LONDON, Dec. 14.—"The ridiculous, fantastic Fordney tariff is choking the American export trade in manufactured goods, and I was told half a dozen times by well-informed men that the American party must reduce it or run the risk of losing the next election."

This was the declaration of Harry Gordon Selfridge, American owner of London's largest department store, upon his arrival home from a visit to the United States.

"America, with all its great resources and its wonderful manufacturing ability," Selfridge continued, "is quite out of the picture as an exporting country. Apart from raw materials, she is sending out hardly anything."

"The United States is a country with a tremendous home market, and for a time she can be extremely comfortable, but when all the requirements of the home market are met and she turns to the outside world to dispose of her surplus production, she will suffer a severe jolt. Her people are growing used to high wages and high costs of production, and when she has to come out into the open to meet world competition, it will be a bitter wrench to get prices down."

Selfridge's remarks on the question of the tariff and the export trade of America aroused considerable interest in England. While tariff advocates there are pointing to the prosperity of the United States to justify their arguments, Free Traders are declaring that the United States is prosperous in spite of, rather than because of, her tariff laws.

Selfridge also declared that he found friendship and belief in England much more prevalent in the United States than at any other time.

"Nobody in the United States," he said, "questions the future of Great Britain. The vast mass of people do not concern themselves about Europe, but for England there is a feeling of profound respect. The English nation, the English people, is capable of doing its own thinking, and will win its way out of the forest of troubles that now encompass it. All American references to Britain are now delightfully friendly."

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

CONFESSIONS OF A

I'M A FIEND

You remember last week, mammas, I told you about my not catching cold. I told you what my mamma does if she has a cold—how she wears a mask made of four or five layers of gauze tied over her nose and mouth when she does anything for me, and how she washes her hands very thoroughly before she touches me, and how she permits no one to come within two yards of me if he has a cold. That is because no matter how husky I might be, there are certain types of colds that are infectious and I might catch them if they came too near to me.

I do not catch cold easily. Do you know why? It is because I am a fiend! Yes, I am a fresh air fiend. My, how I love my fresh air! Every minute of the day I breathe the pure fresh air, which renews and purifies my blood, and is just as necessary for my health as my food. My fresh air fiendishness helps keep my resistance high, so even though I did not catch cold I would throw off more easily.

As you know I live in Southern California where we do not have any extremes of hot and cold weather that some climates have. But even in climates like ours, it gets quite cold during the rainy season and especially at night. When it is very cold, however, I still have my fresh air, but I am dressed warm at that time.

Ever since I was six weeks old I have practically lived outdoors, for I do all my sleeping, night and day, in an outdoor room. When it is cold I sleep in a sleeping bag made of nice soft blanket stuff. My bag has a hood attached to it, and it only opens up and down the front so I can get into it, but there are lots of strong buttonholes and buttons to button me in comfortably. Then my bed covers are pinned down, loosely—with big blanket pins because I am a kicker, believe me, and I could and might kick off my blankets even through my sleeping bag. This bag is nice and comfortable and warm round my neck and prevents the air getting too fresh and sneaking in around my cunning neck.

If it is very cold I have a hot water bottle covered with a nice thick cover at my feet. Doctor says that we babies must be warm, and that it is just superstition that a hot water bottle will make a baby lose strength. (Of course, we must not be kept so warm that we perspire, for perspiring and then cooling too rapidly will cause us to catch cold.)

Mammas must remember this: we babies must have fresh air, but we must be warm while getting it. Perhaps you think that if I were a delicate child I would not be such a fresh air fiend, but doctor says the delicate child requires fresh air even more than the healthy child, if possible! In fact, many sick children who do not sleep well in the house, because of poor ventilation will fall into a restful sleep as soon as they are put out in their carriages in the fresh air.

Sometimes mammas of sickly babies say that they cannot take their babies outdoors, because they catch cold every time, and doctor says that because they do not get enough fresh air is the big reason why they are sickly. She tells those mothers that unless the wind is very sharp or unless it is extremely cold or raining, their babies should be taken out every day. Suitably clothed, of course.

In the summer, we babies go out when we are one week old, and in the spring and fall usually at two or three weeks. In winter, in the climates where it is very cold, for the first two months we had better have our airing in the house.

When it is cold or raining or anything else makes the outdoor airing absolutely impossible, then we should be dressed just as warmly as though we were going out and put in our carriages close by the wide open window, unless it is very windy. Of course, the sun should not shine directly on our faces, especially our eyes, sleeping or waking, whether in or out of doors, because strong sunlight will injure the eyes. You know that very important point, mothers, don't you?

Next week I will talk to you about the importance of being a fresh air fiend.

Am reviv, mammas—
A. SOCKUMS.

Raisin Graham Muffins: One cup of flour, one tablespoon of sugar, four teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of salt, one cup of graham flour, one-half cup of seeded raisins, one cup of sweet milk, two tablespoons of melted butter and one egg. Sift all the dry ingredients together except the graham flour; add the raisins and the graham flour then stir in the milk, the well-beaten egg and the melted butter. Pour this batter into well-greased muffin pans and bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven.

Egg Toast: Boil six eggs for 20 minutes. Divide the yolks from the whites and set whites aside. Mash the hard-boiled yolks thoroughly, then add to them one-half teaspoon of dry mustard, one tablespoon of olive oil, a pinch of salt, and a drop of tabasco sauce. Set this yolk-paste aside, also, while you make the following White Sauce: Put into a saucepan on the range one cup of sweet milk; thicken it with two tablespoons of flour which have been rubbed into two tablespoons of softened butter. When it has bubbled up once or twice and is smooth, add to it the six hard-boiled egg whites chopped fine. Now serve the dish as follows: Spread the yolk-paste on four slices of hot buttered toast, pour the hot white sauce over each piece of toast, sprinkle grated Parmesan cheese, or finely-chopped cheese, over all, and put on the table at once. (This dish may also be made in a chafing dish, and is an excellent one to serve for a little after-theatre guest supper.)

Baked Indian Pudding: One quart of sweet milk, one-half cup of Indian meal, one egg, one-half cup of sugar, one-half cup of molasses, a piece of butter the size of an egg, one-half teaspoon of ground cinnamon and nutmeg, one cup of seeded raisins and a pinch of salt. Put the milk over the fire till it is scalding hot, then stir into it the cornmeal which has been previously mixed to a paste in a little cold milk. After cooking a short time (just till it thickens slightly), cool it and add other ingredients. Turn the mixture into a buttered baking dish and bake for two hours

BEAUTY CHATS

WINTER MAKE-UP

There are some women who can use rouge successfully in winter, because it adheres to the skin. But in summer, when the skin is more active and the pores open, the color runs off, or rubs off, and the effect is quite dreadful. It is the same with the lip sticks or any other make up.

We won't go into the question of whether or not one should make up. Most women use a touch of rouge frequently, no one is the wiser, they themselves are the prettier, so no one is hurt and no one should be shocked. Make up is only bad when it is obvious. It's less obvious in winter than summer, because either a powder or a paste rouge clings better to the skin and because a tinted lip stick not only lends color to lips apt to be pale from the cold, but, being made of cream, it prevents chapping and bleeding. To be sure, a white cream lip stick will do that too, many prefer them to the colored variety.

Make up looks best, by which I mean less obvious, in winter. I don't know why, unless it is that the slightly artificial look which even the cleverest make up lends, is more becoming to the serges and satins of winter than the simple muslins of summer days. Or one expects rosy cheeks with biting winds. Or one thinks of slightly touched up eyelashes with spangled evening frocks, and not with the tulle and georgettes of summer. Make up is less harmful to the skin in winter, for cream can be used under rouge then, but never in summer, and rouge is drying unless it is superlative quality.

Here is a list of things for a winter toilet cabinet: glycerine, powdered borax, heavy cold cream, cleansing cream (though the other cream will do for this), borax for a red nose, powdered oatmeal to keep the hands soft, face powder, vanishing cream for hasty freshening up.

Snow White Hair:—There is no way to turn grey hair to that of pure white, but you can keep the grey shade from becoming yellowed by using bluing in the rinse at the time of the shampoo. Another precaution is that

U. S. Will Build New Embassy at Tokio

TOKIO, Dec. 14.—The new American embassy compound will be almost double the size of the old one, it was learned through purchase of Prince Ito's property adjoining for the ambassador's residence at a cost of $1,000,000. Plans for a reinforced concrete structure, to replace the embassy destroyed by fire, have been completed here and congressional approval is hoped for in March. The new structures will include an apartment house for junior officials and chancery and councilors' homes of the most modern type.

A good many live wires are hitched to quarter-horse motors.

Shipping Board Sells Ten Obsolete Ships

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Chairman Farley of the shipping board has announced the sale of ten obsolete ships, ranging from 6,500 to 15,000 tons. All are to be scrapped in this country within a year. Five went to the Boston Iron and Metal company of Baltimore and five to the L. H. Crawford and company of New York. The sale price was not made public.

Carefully controlled experiments by competent investigators have a tendency to disprove the generally accepted statement that the hot, dry air of the arid region is more beneficial to human health than the cool, moist air of the seacoast country.

DEATH LURKS IN CHRISTMAS BREW

Poison Liquor Carries Threat
Of Death to Hundreds
At Yuletide Season

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Christmas, the season of proverbial cheer, holds certain promise of death for hundreds throughout the United States.

Death lurks in the Yuletide bowl, filled with "imported" liquors, synthetic gins, etherized beer, plain old moonshine and the dozens of varieties of home brews and deadly products of the amateur and conscienceless distillers of "poisons."

Reports from coroners, police and health departments of the principal cities of the United States, compiled by the International News Service, show that, to date, "bad booze" caused 2,165 deaths.

While this figure is applicable to the entire United States, it means that ether, wood alcohol and other ingredients of 1923 liquor have claimed thousands of other victims—at a conservative estimate, 10,000.

Coroners Are Ready
Two big occasions for the bootlegger—Christmas and New Year's—are just ahead, and the coroners and ambulance men all over the land are getting ready for the rush.

Philadelphia reported 400 deaths attributable directly to poison rum. The coroner said this figure is "conservative."

Another 400 deaths, the coroner reports, were due to alcoholism as a contributing cause in pneumonia and similar diseases induced by bad booze.

New York City has had 363 deaths already this year as compared with 290 for all of 1922. In Chicago, Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen credits liquor with 285, tabulated thus: Whiskey, 220; ether beer, 45; gin, 7; others, 13, and wine none. Detroit had 115 deaths. Pittsburgh 67, Kansas City 63, Buffalo 49, Portland 35, and Des Moines 30, according to their police and health department records.

Coast Cities' Quota
Other reports were: Seattle 22, St. Louis 18, Washington 18, Los Angeles 18, Denver 16, San Francisco 13, Knoxville 5, Atlanta 5; Birmingham 4, Albany 4, Nashville 2, Norfolk 2.

In addition, estimates for Ohio were 400, Iowa 100, Colorado 75, Indiana 52, Wyoming 50, and New Mexico 3. In the nineteen counties forming the Syracuse enforcement district in New York there have been 35 deaths and 100 hospital cases.

In New York last year approximately 7,000 alcoholics were sent to hospitals for treatment. Figures will be higher this year, according to the health department. Most victims who came out of hospitals are "never the same," according to Francis J. Gerty, superintendent of the psychopathic hospital at Chicago.

Moonshine Poison
"Practically all cases are the type known as 'moonshine' poisoning," he said. "The effect is more profound and more often fatal, and survivors commonly show mental deterioration after a few sprees."

Today the country faces a flood of liquor. At least thirty boats are in the "rum armada" off the Jersey coast and thousands of pints and quarts are run in by small craft every night and foggy day.

Some idea of the amount of booze off the Atlantic shore is shown by the following: Zeeland, schooner of 105 tons registry, was captured with a cargo estimated to be worth $250,000.

Of the thirty boats in the rum fleet, one has a registry of 6,599 tons, another 3,798 tons and a third 2,350 tons. These three have a tonnage 119 times as great as the Zeeland and there are twenty-seven other boats in the fleet and more coming daily.

Thousands of gallons are coming over the Canadian border. Nine dry agents are trying to stop the flow into New York state.

"Thousands of cases are said to have been brought through safely in past months," says a Syracuse report.

Albany, Buffalo and the lake states report "floods" of Canadian ale and whiskey flowing through from Canada. The Atlantic gulf ports are trying to foil the rum ships.

On the Mexican border rangers are trying to stop tequila and Chihuahua beer from getting by. Inland states have their "moonshine" and synthetic beverages to contend with.

"Lizzy" Einstein of New York, government sleuth of a thousand disguises, is reported to be somewhere on the Pacific coast closing up cafes and speakeasies. Down in Texas the rangers are massing on the border.

WOMAN GAINS FREEDOM

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 14.—Released from the city jail, where she had been confined ever since she shot and fatally wounded Samuel J. Gillespie last Sunday, Mrs. Augusta Keeley was undergoing medical treatment for a nervous breakdown at her home here today. She was freed late Tuesday when Prosecutor James W. Selden decided he did not have sufficient evidence to prosecute her on either a murder or a manslaughter charge. According to Mrs. Keeley, she fired in self defense.

REPORT HOTEL IS SOLD

PASADENA, Dec. 14.—Disposal of the Hotel Green property, famous Pasadena winter resort, for approximately $1,000,000, by the Pasadena Hotel company, to a large syndicate of Californians, was reported here in financial circles. Although the hotel will be operated as a winter resort until April 1, present plans contemplate changing half of the building into business and office space and the remainder into an apartment hotel.

ANOTHER FREE BARBECUE

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 16

"Burton Heights"

Over $54,000 worth of property was sold in BURTON HEIGHTS on opening day.

Some record for a single day.

Stop a moment and ask yourself "WHY." There must be a reason.

Run out to the tract. Stand on one of those grapevine-covered lots and look about you. To the north are the wonderful Sierra Madre mountains—to the south the evergreen Verdugos—to the east Montrose and La Crescenta country—to the west Sunland and Tujunga. Take in this wonderful all-direction view and you will not have to ask the question, "WHY?"

The continuous panorama will captivate you—the nearness to nature will grip you—the wonderful health-giving climate will enthrill you.

You will then see why dozens of home lovers select BURTON HEIGHTS as a location for their future abode. You will know why they consider this the "cream" of Southern California.

BURTON HEIGHTS is located in the heart of the La Crescenta Valley—the Section that is "going." So appealing are the homesites in this tract that it was almost half sold out in a single day, establishing a sales record for Southern California.

It is a part of the famous Toschke vineyard, on Pennsylvania avenue, near Michigan boulevard—on the top of a mammoth knoll from which a wonderful view in all directions is secured. Each lot is covered with an excellent quality of grapes—the kind that this ranch has long been noted for.

Government statistics show La Crescenta valley to be the most healthful spot in the world—get that—IN THE WHOLE WORLD. And—get this, too—BURTON HEIGHTS is right in the heart of this valley. Could more be desired?

If you love the mountains, this tract will appeal to you. If you delight in valley scenes you will go wild over BURTON HEIGHTS. If your heart yearns for the open spaces—to get away from artificial things—to experience the freedom that only the mountains and the valleys can give—to have a little cozy home of your own out where things are real—this wonder tract will grip your very soul.

The La Crescenta Valley is the section that John S. McGroarty selected for a home. All over Southern California this famous poet and writer rambled until he came to this valley—and there he settled down—the end of the rainbow had been found. "It's the garden spot of the world," says Mr. McGroarty. "God kissed this wonderfully favored section. He caressed it with his unspeakable love. His smile bestowed upon it health-giving qualities, a peace that has come to abide, a quiet restfulness that cannot be surpassed."

Our first barbecue was a "whale" of a success. Seven hundred folks from Glendale and surrounding country were fed, and everyone went away singing the praise of Joe Romero.

Joe was on hand "with the bells." He knows exactly how to barbecue meat and to serve it with delicious salad, coffee and everything else to go with it.

"Next Sunday's barbecue will be the best I have ever served," said Joe this morning, and Joe meant what he said. This means that if you miss next Sunday's "feed" you'll have just reason to be sorry. These Spanish viands blend wonderfully with the beauties of the charming La Crescenta Valley.

Come out and experience a touch of nature—get close to the hills, and the trees and the growing things.

Everything will be free.

From Glendale drive out Verdugo Road to Honolulu Avenue in Montrose and continue on Honolulu to our Tract Office on Pennsylvania avenue, just south of Michigan Boulevard; or take Glendale and Montrose car at Maryland and Broadway, and get off at Pennsylvania.

BURBANK SUBSTITUTE NEW PARKING SYSTEM

Cars Adopt 25 Degree Angle
In Standing at Curbs,
New Lines Painted

The honor system has been applied to parking cars along San Fernando boulevard, Burbank, following a petition presented to the Board of Trustees signed by practically every business man from Angeleno to Palm avenues, the district canvassed.

A 25 degree angle has been substituted for the 45 degree angle heretofore used, and the new lines have been painted. This means that shoppers may park their cars along the boulevard, while the merchants are in honor bound to park on the side streets.

A park of approximately seven acres has been presented to the city by the Community Investment company, a subdivision firm, the location being near the Los Angeles river, in the southern section.
This follows the policy being advocated by the Regional Planning commission, of small parks included in subdivisions.

The only string tied to the proposition is that the city must care for the park.

School Program Tonight
A delightful entertainment will be given tonight at the Thomas A.
Edison school, about 200 children participating in the exercises, which will be of a Christmas nature.

The purpose of the entertainment, as announced, is to raise funds for the purchase of books, music and phonograph records.
There will be holly and mistletoe, snowflakes and the usual Yuletide festoons decorating the auditorium, and the occasion will be honored by the presence of Santa Claus, who has accepted by radio and is on his way from the North Pole.

Dances and drills will be part of the program, and a boys' chorus will be a special number.
The little folks have been trained by Miss Boughton.

P.-T. A. Program
The following program was given at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Joaquin Miller Parent-Teacher association:

Piano duet, "La Colombe," Mrs.
Hammer and Mrs. Chivens.
Talk on Christmas, Rev. Simmons.

Vocal, "Star of the East," Mrs.
Perkins.

"The Reading Circle," Mrs. A.
H. Brown of Glendale.
Duet, selection from "Peer Gynt," by Grieg, Mrs. Hammer and Mrs. Chivens.

By a straw vote, the Women's club has gone on record two to one as favoring Benmar Hills as the site for their new clubhouse.
The site is at the corner of University avenue and Fourth street, and is valued at $15,000, being 160x120 feet. The only restriction placed by Ben Marks, the donor, is that the building to be erected there shall not cost less than $30,000.

The location will be definitely decided by a ballot at the January meeting.

EAGLE ROCK SCHOOL PROGRAM FOR CHRISTMAS

Children Give Their Annual Entertainment; Talk By Nobel Prize Winner

The children of the Eagle Rock school, staged their annual Christmas entertainment in the auditorium of the schoolhouse this afternoon, under the direction of Mrs. John McNary. The program will be given again tonight.

This afternoon's entertainment drew a large audience, and proved to be most entertaining, 200 pupils of this school participating in the exercises, suggestive of the approaching holidays.

The Eagle Rock school, with the other schools of this community, will now close on Monday, December 31, closing again for New Year's day and opening for the winter term Tuesday, January 2.

It is expected that numbers of parents, who were unable to attend this afternoon's entertainment at the Eagle Rock school, will be present tonight.

Utah Street Drive Ends

As a report of the P.-T. A. drive for clothing and other articles for the needy pupils of the Utah street school, in the Los Angeles Mexican quarter, a truckload of things was dispatched from Eagle Rock Wednesday afternoon, reports Mrs. J. C. Reiter, president of the association.

Mrs. McLean, a teacher at the Utah street school, who lives at 130 Ellenwood drive, states that the gifts are proving very acceptable, and will make hundreds of little boys and girls happy this Christmas.

Here's a hint on how to get a seat in a yellow car to Los Angeles, told by a local resident:
"Plant yourself in front of a Mexican. They seldom go beyond the 'Little Mexico' section and at Sonoratown the seat is generally yours."

ken of Pasadena, recent winner of the Nobel prize for scientific contributions to the world, was greatly enjoyed last night by the Brotherhood of the First Presbyterian church, at their regular monthly meeting, held at Occi-

The program was preceded by a 6:30 o'clock dinner.

Cecil Perry of Glendale, is department for recovering in this community, his car stolen some

News Magnified By Press of Europeans

the natural boundary between the two countries should be the Brenner peaks of the Alps, these were made the dividing line, so that the boundary was placed quite a long distance to the north of where it had been, and a large population of German-speaking Austrians were thus taken into Italy, against their will.

"From what I am able to learn, the Italians are compelling the schools and all public institutions to use the Italian language, and the people don't like it. This town, a fine, large, resort city, is in this section. All the people speak German, the store signs are still in German and the business all done in German. Some of the people here, I know, are bitter against ex-President Wilson, placing on him the blame for allowing such an injustice to be perpetrated upon them.

"Just how far self-determination entered into this matter I am not in a position to say. I am only recording facts as I find them.

"The larger part of the Tyrol, which was formerly in Austria, is now in Italy. This section in which Meran is located is called "the Dolomites" and contains some wonderful scenery. I have a book with very fine photographs of it.
Ask me to see it.

"Austria, in its emasculated condition, seems to be trying to make the best of a bad situation and is 'coming back' as fast as could possibly be expected. I gathered that the Austrians have no particular love for Germany now and are repudiating royalty in the right spirit. They have reduced their budget and funded their indebtedness in such a way that their currency is stabilized, and, if not disturbed, it seems that they will work out their salvation.

Stick Close to League

"All these countries of the 'Little Entente' are holding to the League of Nations with a firm grip. It settles their disputes and protects them in their rights. I am satisfied that the ability of all of these European nations to 'come back' is marvelous, and if only this league or some other, which must include all the real powers, America, England, France, Italy, Germany and Russia, could be formed, so as to command and demand the respect and obedience of all its members, the Old World would prosper and be an earthly paradise!

It seems to me that this must be done or it will turn into a cauldron of the other world."

worst earthquake in the imperihistory of that section. Like most accounts of that character, it is probably largely exaggerated. Remember the reports of

OLD TOWN CLOCK TICKS ITS LAST

Fresno's Historic Timepiece Crashes to Earth In Roar of Flames

By GIL A. COWAN
Special to The Evening News FRESNO, Dec. 14.—Fresno is without a town clock! And in view of the fact that Glendale is getting one on the tower of its Presbyterian church, it may be interesting for you to hear the history of the timepiece that faithfully served the central California city for a third of a century.

Fire destroyed the clock tower of the Fresno Adventist church this week, and with one final thunderous peal the clock fell to earth in the debris, according to an account appearing in The Fresno Republican, from which the following eulogy is taken:

"History, romance and adventure were linked closely with the face that looked expressionless upon the city, and the hands that moved incessantly to mark the march of time.

Fix Hour of Murder

"The big gong chimed the hour of funerals, and the hour of weddings. The crucial moment of a dramatic murder was once established in court by the time of the big clock.

"It was in the shadow of the church building, under the glow of the midnight glow from the face of the clock, that Chris Evans and John Morrell, San Joaquin valley outlaws, held up and wounded John D. Morgan, former town marshal, just after they had made a dramatic escape from the county jail.

"The big clock served the busy life of the city during the day, and those humans who by preference or force of circumstances were out at night. It worked night and day, for during the dark hours its face and hands were illuminated.

Faithful Till End

"It was faithful to its duty to the last. Its farewell gong was struck at 2:30 o'clock, sounding the half hour, yesterday afternoon. Before its opportunity to strike the hour of three, flames started their work of destruction.
"Old Faithful was still working when it fell, and only the terrific crash when the tower struck earth stilled its tick.

"Fresno is without a town clock."

California Will Have Prosperity in 1924

creased trade on that score.
San Diego is entering an era of building, its population growing proportionately with Southern California in general and there is nothing economically wrong there.

The oil district of Kern county is on the upgrade. Tulare county has done well with its citrus crop, despite adverse reports of a freeze which in turn helped the deciduous fruit crop prospects of next spring.

Fresno county has come through a period of deflation with flying colors and while land values are low, new capital and new colonists are taking the place of those who were "too prosperous" during the war and overdid things a little.

Optimism Prevails

Optimism is most apparent in Fresno itself, the real estate market becoming increasingly good.
Los Angeles, itself, is the cynosure of all eyes and Glendale is considered the wonder city.

What more could we ask for the prospect of a prosperous New Year?

Our earthquake, a couple of years ago, which were printed in the eastern papers? Why is it that news agencies send forth such exaggerations and lies, especially of disaster and crime in other places and countries?

"Here, seems, they over-draw everything of that kind that happens in America, and there they do the same with European events. How refreshing it is to read the true statement on such matters by a reliable correspondent such as we can obtain sometimes.

"I am not reporting on such matters, but I want to be absolutely accurate in all that I write to you. If I can but feel that you regard what I have to say as reliable I can have a satisfaction that all the cleverness, wit and learning cannot bestow. My trip over here was not made for boosting purposes and I have refrained from doing much of it, but you will be interested in knowing that Los Angeles and Southern California are known everywhere as the home of the movies, and as a fine place in which to live.

Progress Surprises

"A number of people have asked me if it doesn't get too hot in the summer, and of course I proceed to tell them that our summer climate is superior to the winter. They listen with open-mouthed wonder when I talk about our progress.

"I met a German-American Jewess from New York here yesterday, and when I told her where I was from she remarked, 'What do you want to travel away from there for?' I replied, 'Just to get a better realization of what a beautiful land I really live in.'"

"Even if they want to come to America from Europe nowadays it is not everyone that is permitted to do so. If I think our restrictions in entering foreign countries are severe and expensive we must consider the difficulties which people of other lands have in entering ours."

Another of Mr. Kirk's letters will appear at an early date in The Glendale Evening News.

Many Violate Law

"Regardless of the clarity of the law on the subject, in approximately 50 per cent of the arrests made under the provisions of the new parking law there has been no registration certificate in the car, or at least within view of the arresting officer. This is particularly true of cars with locked doors.

"I have always endeavored to deal fairly with the motoring public, but I feel it is my duty to call their attention to the fact that the penalty prescribed for violation of this section is a fine of $500 or confinement in the county jail for a period of six months, or both.

"When there is no registration certificate available for the arresting officer, the only way we can find out to whom the car belongs is by writing to the State Motor Vehicle Department at Sacramento, giving the number on the license plates. This entails quite an amount of work, as well
